

Local and Personal

An unexpected hard shower of rain of about ten minutes duration, which amounted to almost a cloudburst for a few minutes, came yesterday afternoon at about 2:30 o'clock, and was followed by light frequent sprinklings up until this afternoon. By 8 a. m. today the previous 24 hour's rainfall had amounted to 16 of an inch, the most of which fell in Tuesday afternoon's big shower. This down-pour caught much hay down in the valley, but in general was much needed and proved very beneficial to the growing crops.
