HENRY AND ME' EXPLAIN VIEWS IN CHICAGO TRIB

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—"Henry and me," letters to the Chicago Tribune pubhed today, defend their respective ositions in the controversy over the acard recently displayed by William llen White, "the me" of the combinaon in a window of his newspaper of of Kansas—says in his letter, "I ob-serve that you are laboring under the impression William Allen White is being prosecuted for violation of some law which relates to free speech. This is not the case. The phase of the law which Mr. White violated was that which guarantees to every man free-dom to work. He entered into a conspiracy with others to intimidate the men who are working."

The Tribune, in a published state-ment, answers the letter of Governor Allen by saying "his opinion may be based on some facts which we do not know and which he does not state. Mr. White put a placard in his window expressing himself 49 per cent in sympathy with the strikers. How that in the faintest way was part of a conspiracy to intimidate men at work we can-If he did not have the right a make that statement in his paper or makes the method of their protest ille-gal in that state, but if applied to prevent an expression of opinion, it is tyranny."

Mr. White's letter says in part: "My utterance did not need a poster. But what hurt me was my friends on commercial street, businessmen, bankers doctors and private citizens, who own no newspapers and who were muzzled by the governor's orders. That I might have the test with the sting out-mean the sting of being a radica strike sympathizer-I cut down the percent of sympathy to 50 per cent, which being translated, was the average man's view. Then I defied the law because the legislature not being in session, I could not take part in a fight to repeal it. Annulment was my only course. But after the case was filed I took down the poster; it had achieved its end."

He continued by saying that the industrial question must be settled by reason and not by force.
