

Local and Personal

While only a trace of rain was recorded at the local weather office as a result of a shower that began at about 10:30 last night, some of the rural districts received a noticeable precipitation. Shortly before 11 o'clock last night rain fell in sheets for about five minutes at a point about a mile north of town on the Crater Lake highway. The last rain in the valley fell on June 10th, when the precipitation amounted to .20 of an inch.

"Golf is the thing in The Dalles now," observed Chauncey Butler, who is at the Multnomah on his way home from visiting his wife and children at Seaside. "We talked golf for a year and a half before it 'took.' Now we have a fine course and one of the best clubhouses in the state. When the club started I suppose not more than four or five people in The Dalles knew how to play the game, but there was no difficulty in signing up members, and there has been a brisk business in the sale of clubs and balls in the last few months. The club owns its own grounds and they have been laid out by professionals. The golf club is becoming one of the civic centers of the community."—Oregonian.
