

Local and Personal

A liberal sprinkling of snow was seen on Mounts Ashland and Wagner this morning and Wednesday morning and because of the chilly weather many persons feared a frost and not a few covered up their tomatoes and such vegetables last night as a precaution. Fires in stoves last night and this morning felt quite comfortable. Fair and warmer weather is predicted for Friday. Following the maximum of 65 degrees Wednesday, this morning's minimum temperature fell to 35 degrees.

"One Clear Call"

Ask your neighbor—if he has seen the picture, he will be a better advertisement for it than anything we could possibly write here.

We merely will say it is a superb story, finely acted and thrillingly staged. And when we have said that, we have not done the picture justice by half.
