

WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES TO BE PAID JAN. 1

The War Savings Certificates of the series of 1918 will be due on Jan. 1, 1923, and the government is now prepared to take up these stamps, and issue new series Treasury Savings Certificates, or redeem for cash, at the option of the holder. These certificates of the series of 1918 may now be presented at the local post office, or any bank which is a member of the federal reserve system, if unregistered, and if Treasury Certificates are desired in exchange they will be issued at once by the postmaster or bank, dated as of Jan. 1, 1923, taking up the War Savings Certificates at matured value. The new Treasury Savings Certificates yield interest at the rate of 4 per cent compounded semi-annually, if allowed to run to maturity, which is five years from date of issue.

If the holder of the 1918 War Savings Certificates desires cash they will be taken up by the postmaster or bank, a receipt given, and the certificates sent to the nearest branch

Federal Reserve bank. A check will be issued by the bank, and mailed to the holder on or about Jan. 1, 1923. All registered stamps must be handled through post office where registered. Unregistered stamps may be handled through any bank which is a member of the Federal Reserve system, or through any post office.

Opening Saturday of 20th Century Store Medford Center Bldg.

The opening of the 20th Century Store, in the Medford Center Department Store, will occur tomorrow. They carry everything to be found in a general grocery line and are No. 35 of a chain of stores in Washington and Oregon, and their entire stock is new.

The store will be in charge of Theodore Wixon, who has moved here from Portland. Fred E. Hohn, of Medford is assistant manager.

G. W. Alexander, supervisor of the chain of stores, is here assisting in arranging for the opening.

Manager Wixon says in locating here they were greatly impressed with the city and valley, the progressive ways of the people, the wonderful climate and above all the big future of Medford, the Hub of Southern Oregon and Northern California.

Famous Play Revived

"The Old Homestead," in which "the grand old man of the screen," Theodore Roberts, is the underscoring player, is now in its third day at the Page theater, where it is playing to a large and appreciative audience.

This is a photoplay that is different, and one in which the characterization is excellent.

Theodore Roberts is ideal for the part of Uncle Joshua, splendidly interpreting that quaint character.

George Fawcett does fine work as the "tight-wad" money lender.

T. Roy Barnes, playing the part of the happy tramp, to whom the mere joy of living was enough, is always tremendously welcome when he shoots into a scene.

Ann Ridgeway, playing the part of the love-sick country girl, gives an unusually fine portrayal.

At the Rialto

Frank Mayo has added another success in "Caught Bluffing," in which he is starring at the Rialto theater.

The story is laid in Alaska during the gold excitement period when the only law respected by men was carried on the hip in pistol holsters.

Frank Mayo, the gambling house proprietor who always plays squarely himself and allows no one in his place to do otherwise. There comes a time, however, when the gambler is forced to resort to the underhand game to save the life of the only girl in the world he has ever loved, and loses his heart to her.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

A. C. Howlett

Last Friday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Swink, one of our prominent business men of Butte Falls, Miss Lorena Lowe of Central Point, A. S. Turnbow of Eugene, Ore., and Amos Turnbow of Butte Falls, came out from Butte Falls to the Sunnyside for dinner. All of them had been up to Butte Falls combining business with pleasure, and came out on the stage as far as here and took passage on the stage for Medford.

Among the guests at the Sunnyside Friday, Dec. 1st in addition to those named above were Millard Robinson, Buster McClelland, George Lewis and the Smith boys who are located at Four-bit creek where they have located on homesteads.

H. C. Meacham of Trail was here on business Saturday.

There were four young men came out on the Butte Falls stage Saturday on their way to Medford and one of them, Barney Hogan, was on his way to Seattle to work in a hospital until spring, when he expects to return to his old job in Butte Falls.

Since the work has been suspended on the Von der Hellen canal contract on an irrigation project above Talent, where S. B. Holmes was bookkeeper, he has resumed his place in our post office as clerk.

It is a good thing for the readers of the Eaglelets that the author does not attend the dances here for if he did he might be compelled to record incidents that take place Saturday nights that would be considered a disgrace to our town; for instance, Sunday morning as one of the late sleepers came into the sitting room another one of the boarders asked, "You had lots of moonshine over there last night, didn't you?" And that after there were several ladies called and in the run of conversation one of them related how she was disturbed by their drunken carousals and could see small groups of men and women walking along the sidewalk and one of the men would take what appeared to be a bottle out from under the sidewalk and he would apparently take a drink, and then they would take a drink all around, ladies and all, and soon act as though they were drunk, at least they seemed to be very boisterous. But what I started in to tell was about some one stealing. Eli Dahack's car and running it off of the old wagon bridge. It appears that the man or men or women, for there is no clue to who it was, at any rate the party who did the act deliberately tore the railing off one side of the bridge and took a long pole and stretched it quartering across the bridge so that, when the front wheel would strike it would hit the car so as to run it off the side of the bridge where it would drop twelve or fifteen feet, but whether that can be attributed to the moonshine or to some other cause is a question to be settled, but the car was not so badly damaged as one would suppose. The top was badly smashed, the radiator and shields were badly bent up but the machinery was but little damaged. I would suggest that if this defiance of law is not stopped that when the new council is organized the first of January they repeal the ordinance allowing the promoters of the dancing here to continue the dancing after midnight, for the opinion is very prevalent that some of the people who are doing the mischief go to the dances in Medford and get steamed up and then after the dances close in Medford and Central Point come out here and do their dirty work where they can keep up all night. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

There were but few guests at the Sunnyside Sunday, but those who ventured out seemed to enjoy themselves. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Van Leewin and Mrs. Anna Hinman of Medford, Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Natwick, also of Medford, besides a number of our neighbors.

Monday was one of our lovely winter days, just cold enough to make a person feel comfortable when out of the house, in fact the first four days of December proved to be ideal, but Monday night the December rain began to come down in earnest and this Tuesday afternoon the rain is coming down in sheets and the ground is covered with water and Butte creek is beginning to make us think of the kind of winters we used to have back in the seventies when where the Crater Lake highway crosses Butte creek the water was spread all over the lowlands and where the embankment on the north side of the creek and where the railroad bridge now stands was all over the banks, but since the channel is deeper and wider perhaps there is not so much danger, at least we hope that there will not be such a flood again for there is no telling the amount of damage that may be done, but those of us who saw the floods of the winter of '61 and '62 always dread to see the heavy December rains and snowstorms.

Robert Nello who has a stock ranch near the head of Salt creek, was a business caller last Monday and remarked that he wanted to sell his farm and move to Eagle Point, as he thought that it has a bright future, and in the run of conversation asked if I knew how many retired farmers there were located in our town, and when I came to think of it I am surprised to see how many there are.

Monday when the Butte Falls stage came in from Medford there were three lovely, sweet looking girls and three extremely happy looking boys came out as passengers and the boys acted as though they were afraid that the girls might get away from them and get lost in our city, and they succeeded so well that I did not learn their names or residences, but I hope that they succeeded in reaching their destination all O. K.

Thomas Stanley and Charley Cingcade were business callers Monday.

Mrs. Ella G. Arnes of Derby, but formerly of Skelton, Wash., who is stopping at the Hill hotel on the Butte Falls road for her health came out on the stage Monday and stopped at the Sunnyside for dinner on her way to consult her physician. Chas. Brown, Roy Ashpole, one of the firm of Nichols & Ashpole, Harold Van Scoy, our mail carrier between Medford and Butte Falls, Leland Pettygrew, Clarence Pruitt were here for dinner and breakfast, and later in the afternoon Hon. Judge Geo. Dunn of Ashland, our representative in the state senate, and Arthur Kleinhammer of Little Applegate and Mr. Dunford also of Little Applegate, came in for dinner.
