The interest in the Rev. Price divine healing meetings at Albany is at a high pitch, and has spread out over the Willamette valley towns, with strong supporters for both sides.

The Corvallis Gazette Times makes the following editorial comment on the situation, which will be of interest here, as a result of local discussions of the subject: "The Rev. Mr. Price seems to be well named. If reports that come here are true he is now offering his photographs, all beautiful, autographed, at one dollar per photo. The Rev. Mr. Price goes on the theory that Barnum was a piker and told only half the truth. Religion, it seems, can no longer be had 'without money and without price.'"
