SCREEN
 Strong Western Picture
 "The Cowboy and the Lady," a Western picture featuring Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore, will be shown at the Rialto theatre for the last time tonight. It is said to be a strong picture of the late Clyde Fitch's stage success of the same name. The picture was screened in Wyoming, in which the scenes are supposed to take place. It's well worth one's while.

A Remarkable Cast
 The two featured players in George Melford's latest production of "Burning Sands" are Wanda Hawley and Milton Sills, both of whom had prominent parts in Mr. Melford's preceding production, "The Woman Who Walked Alone." In "Burning Sands" they play parts which are direct opposites of the roles played by Agnes Ayres and Rodolph Valentino in "The Sheik," in that Miss Hawley plays the headstrong English girl who sets out to win the man she loves, while Mr. Sills is the one who does not know love until it comes close to his heart. "Burning Sands" shows for the last time at the Page tonight.
