When Oregon Jones and Ellsworth Kelly, in the custody of Sheriff Geo. Lewis and Deputy Lister, stepped from train No. 15 last night they were greeted by a crowd estimated from 500 to 1000 people. The depot platform was packed with local people who wanted to get a good view of the two jail-breakers who have created so much excitement here during the past six months. As they were rushed to a waiting automobile the crowd surged round the officers trying to get a closer view of the prisoners. Jones and Kelly were handcuffed together, while leg irons were employed by the officers on the train in order that the men could not get a single opportunity to escape. The crowd followed the officers to the jail and saw the men safely locked in—Grants Pass Courier. 267*

Every Farmer Should Have Copy Farmers' Directory

Every farmer in Jackson county who wants to see what the new Farmers' Directory says about him or her and about all the other farmers in this county, over 4300 in all, also about over 1500 farmers residing in Siskiyou county, Calif., should call at this office, look over the directory and secure a copy of the same.

The directory gives the name, address, number of acres owned, assessed valuation and location of same by section and township, as well as to nearest city, and what the farmer specializes in.

We secured a number of copies from the publishers and are selling them at a price so you cannot afford to do without one. 246

'Brawn of North' Starring Strongheart

For thrills, both melodramatic and emotional, "Brawn of the North," the feature attraction at the Rialto theatre can be well recommended. Strongheart, the remarkable dog "actor," has the leading role in this production.

Many are of the opinion that "Brawn of the North" is better than "The Silent Call."

"Brawn," the picture name for Strongheart the dog, is an animal owned by Marion Wells, played by Irene Rich, who goes to the north country to help her brother and fiancé to develop a mine. The wild country soon exposes her fiancé for what he is—a petty-souled rascal—and a fight ensues from Marion's refusal to marry him. In that struggle her brother is killed. Subsequently when the discarded lover returns and further attempts to harm the girl, Brawn even the score for her brother's death; and later when Marion is happily married to the real hero in the story the dog rescues her baby from a pack of starving wolves.

And this picture reveals a new screen vamp, "Lady Silver," and until Laurence Trimble acquired her for a role in "Brawn of the North" she was one of the exhibition of Siberian wolves at the Denver zoo. She is a wolf, and a fair-haired one at that, and one of the most beautiful animals that ever appeared before a camera.

MEDFORD PEOPLE AND MAIL HELD UP BY FRESHETS

The demoralized train service of the Southern Pacific since Saturday forenoon because of flooded conditions in the Willamette valley, the main trouble being due to the washing out of the approach to the railroad bridge at Jefferson, although there were lesser washouts at other points, has left a number of Medford citizens homeward bound from Portland marooned in the north since Saturday forenoon, and has kept others en route to Portland marooned this side of the trouble.

Not only that, but the local postoffice has received no eastern mail or other mail from the north since Saturday forenoon. However, a mail train is expected to arrive here late this afternoon or this evening, as it was reported this forenoon that conditions had been temporarily remedied by this morning so as to enable through south bound trains from Portland to proceed this way.

The first through passenger train is expected to reach here late this afternoon or this evening, bringing the Saturday afternoon and Sunday newspapers of Portland.

The service north was temporarily restored by hasty repairs and by routing trains around the flood section by circuitous ways, making the time between here and Portland now four hours longer than usual, due to the detours and the soft condition of the bed of the tracks, making trains proceed very carefully.

All trains from Portland will be from one to two hours late for a week yet at least, despite the rushing of repairs and strengthening of tracks.

The northbound trains ran from here as usual on Saturday, Sunday and today, but up to this noon were only destined to go as far as Eugene.

The northbound trains which left here Saturday and Sunday forenoon began to come back through the city this forenoon, running as local passenger trains or empties.

It is understood here that the Pacific highway is impassable with floods in a number of parts of the Willamette valley, and that a number of cars are stalled on the highway, half or more covered with water. It is also the understanding here that the branch railroads up north of the Southern Pacific are also blocked by floods and washouts.

The telegraph companies here because of flood damage in the Willamette valley were without direct service to Portland yesterday and today, but managed to do business during that time by routing all telegraph matter to Portland by way of San Francisco and Salt Lake or Ogden.

FARMERS WEEK TO OPEN TOMORROW AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Farmer's Week opens tomorrow at the public library with horticulture as the main subject for the men folks during the entire day, and with children's clothing, with Miss Van Kirk of O. A. C., in charge for the women folks. Wednesday is one of the big days for the farmers as this is marketing day and the principal speaker will be W. D. Dodson of the Portland Chamber of Commerce. His address will also be interesting to the business men of the city. Other speakers on the program will be Prof. Beeze, marketing specialist of the O. A. C., and Paul V. Maris, director of extension, with President Mansfield to come in on the climax.

There will also be Farm Bureau Day and election of officers will take place at 1:20 p. m.

Every farmer in Jackson county should make an effort to attend all the sessions on Wednesday, as they will not have another opportunity to hear Mr. Dodson, who is doing great work through the business men and Chamber of Commerce to solve the farmers' marketing problems. Wednesday will also be a big day for the women of the county. Miss Marjory Smith of the O. A. C., and Dr. Holt will have charge of this division and there should be a good turn-out of women to hear these discussions on the health of the child.
