Multiply that by two or three and you get a faint idea what the non-championship game rule will eventually lead to. It's human nature for the boys on a good football team and their partisans to wish to prove themselves the best team. Far from interfering with studies, healthy rivalry of that kind, under skillful supervision can be made an incentive to scholastic excellence. Athletes who measure their strength against one another in a fair and square test don't bear grudges afterward.

Seems to us the state association decidedly is standing on the wrong

Why not a high school conference of the larger state high schools modeled after the intercollegiate con-ferences? That would settle the championship matter automatically. days in the county jail when he pleaded guilty this morning before Justice Glenn O. Taylor to a charge of chicken stealing preferred by J. H. Cook. The chickens, said to be As it is there is no head or tail to the schedules adopted by the state high schools. Every school goes for itself, and there is no way of keep-ing track of them as a whole. With a few exceptions the schedules lead fine thoroughbred poultry, belonged to Cook. The arrest was made yes-terday afternoon by Patrolman Cave. Tex Miller was arrested last night by Patrolman Prescott on a charge a few exceptions the season.

But suppose, let us say, that Medford, Ashland, Eugene, Albany, Salem, Corvallis, Astoria and Oregon City high schools were to form a western Oregon high school confer-ence, modeled after the Pacific coast or northwest intercollegiste confer-ences, and that Pendleton, Baker, La Grande and The Dalles, for example, should form an eastern Oregon high plaint, filed by Dora Price, truant officer, of failing to send his son to school. He was admonished by Justice Taylor to take upon himself the responsibility of seeing that his son attended school and was told that shoul form an easen oregon has chool conference.

The schools in each conference then could draw up regular confer-ence schedules and when they got through the winner in each conferunless the son's attendance was satis-factory henceforth that he would be compelled to stand trial, jointly with his wife, for not sending the boy to school. Grigsby agreed to see to it through the winner in each conference could play the winner of the other and we'd have a legitlimate state champion—perhaps if that were done the Pertiand schools would form a separate conference of their own on good relations with the others, and a final big game in Portland could wind up the season by or before Thanksgiving day for the state title. Would such a game draw? We'll law our gold watch art chain that it would—and winning it would mean something to all concerned.

But that would require too many games, we hear someone object. Not one conference to play all the other that his son attended school regularly and stated that his recent absence had been due to an injury of the eye sustained in a game of basketball.

one conference to play all the other teams in the conference, no need whatsoever. The colleges don't do it. It would be easy to limit the schedthe of each team to say four or at most five conference games. Then the one or two inter-conference games for the state title would mean only five or six or at most seven games all told for the winning eleven.

only live or six of all most seven games all told for the winning eleven. Easy enough to wind up a schedule like that by Thanksgiving day.

As for the smaller high schools, they might have conferences of their own, if they wished, or they could schedule games between themselves as they do now. Nor would the conference plan mean mutiny against the state association. The association could well remain the supervisory body to lay down and enforce general rules of eligibility and such, with each conference left to attend to the details of its own schedules.

Why wouldn't that be a good plan and a workable plan? Looks good to us, and we didn't think it up either. The conference suggestion comes from C. E. Ingalis, editor of the Corvallis Gazette Times, a lover and parameters.
