Ralph Hand, once the "pride of Gold Hill," now known as "the terror of Lane county," was given the decision in a handicap match last Saturday night at Cottage Grove, over Mike Yokel of Salt Lake City. Yokel agreed to throw Hand twice in an hour, and failed to do it even once. According to Eugene papers, there was considerable bragging and betting before the battle. The men are slated for a wrestling match to a finish, in the near future. During the furiously contested battle, the referee got in the road, and was jammed against a ring post so hard, that a rib was broken.
