RED CROSS HAS A

BEAUTIFUL BED

SPREAD TO SELL

An effort is being made by the Red Cross to help to sell a most beautiful bedspread, made entirely by hand and represents four years of work by a skilled and artistic needle woman, who lives in the mountains and who has shown wonderful industry and ability in the creation of this beautiful spread. It is made entirely of imported mercerized thread, the design is artistic and perfectly balanced, and the work is on a par with the famous crocheted work of the peasantry of certain European localities and also of the work of similar native craftsmen in the Appalachian mountains.

It is interesting to realize that in our Oregon mountains there are hidden away real artists, who with patience and skill can conceive and execute lasting contributions to art and industry.

SCREEN

Freemasonry among married men is the theme on which Peter B. Kyne built the story of "Brothers Under the Skin," at the Rialto this week. It has to do with two husbands and their wives.

One of the husbands is a shipping clerk with $30 a week. He lives in the Bronx with his wife, who, we are told, shares all of his joys, but none of his sorrows. The other husband is vice president of the same firm, and while his salary is $30,000 a year and he lives on Riverside Drive, his troubles are none the less numerous. Millie, the wife of the clerk, spends considerable time figuring on how to get out of debt, but is willing to go in deeper, nevertheless. She buys everything on sight and repents on installments. But, worst of all—at least from her husband's point of view—she's a delicate woman.

Dorothy Kirtland, the other wife, like Millie, knows nothing about earning money, but everything about spending it. Countless misunderstandings in the two menages result over money matters and then there is the inevitable "other women." Each husband believes himself to be horribly henpecked, and while each agrees at frequent intervals that life with his wife is impossible, at equally frequent intervals he agrees that life without her is also impossible.

One day the husbands strike. The vice president insists on a more economic household budget and the clerk demands home cooking. "You've been a cat and I've been a mouse long enough," says the young man in a fit of rage to his wife. "Now I'm a bulldog!" While the final scene shows the "silver lining," and the piece ends very sweetly and charmingly in the conventional manner, it leaves you with a feeling that all concerned had better keep their fingers crossed.

The cast includes Helene Chadwick, Claire Windsor, Mae Busch, Pat O'Malley and Norman Kerry.

Valentino at Page in

"The Young Rajah"

Rodolph Valentino's legion of adorers have their cup of bliss filled by brimming this week at the Page theater, where that popular star is appearing in "The Young Rajah," a filming of J. A. Mitchell's enchanting romance, "Amos Judd." Rodolph appears not only in the habiliments of Occidental civilization, but in the gorgeous robes of an Indian ruler.

He has Wanda Hawley for his vis-a-vis, a fine contrast for Rodolph's dark beauty.

The story has to do with an infant Rajah who is taken to America by Amos Judd to save him from death at the hands of men who want his throne. Judd raises him as his own son, keeping for him the great fortune in jewels and English gold until he is grown.

When he goes to Harvard he is the richest boy in the university, and this makes enemies for him. Then the man who has stolen his kingdom sends a band of Hindu outthroats to kill the young man, but the adherents of his father save him and set him on the throne.

In the supporting cast are Pat Moore, Charles Ogle, Fanny Midgely, Robert Ober, Josef Swickard, Bertram Grassby, George Periolat, Maude Wayne and others.

A he-man fighter, and yet—a gentleman, Reginald Denny is winning new admirers in the second of "The New Leather Pushers" series, an added feature on this week's bill. "There are six in the series, all fast-moving prize fight stories.

Help Kidneys

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
