Outside of the lower-class trick of getting caught, J. Kearsley Mitchell, social aristocrat and millionaire involved in the mystery death of a beautiful New York model, must feel good about the making public of one of his letters containing the classic expression: "I would love to kiss your little pink toes."

"HOW TO AVOID THE PITFALLS OF PROSPERITY"—(Hilina Literary Digest). This includes the terror of knowing where next week's gasoline is coming from.

The belittlement and bedevilment of this fair state continues, and no one ever dreamed Oregon would go crazy enough to get on the front page of metropolitan dailies, and among the main articles in the magazines.

"The Federated Council Bulletin" maintains "the last elections showed a victory for righteousness." This is good news, but the wicked are still in the majority, if they vote as they act.

A LADY TALKS I said, Look a hole through me, Mister, how's all your folks, and he said, this water tastes better to me than Portland water, I've got to drive clean to Yreka in that Packard over there. And just to encourage him I said, Go on the train, the brakeman will talk to you, and he said, Ho! ho! you're a girl with the snappy come-back; you don't see many these days. And I said, I sure am an intellectual giant, peddling hash for $9, and all of it I can glom in a week. And he said, the struggle is always upwards, and I guess he's right. Well, to make a long story short, I went out to a country dance with him, and outside of a hired man giving a sewing machine agent a good licking, it was fairly quiet. They said they were battling over a ruffie attachment, but a bobbed haired chicken wanted the sewing machine agent to win too bad to fool me.

THE "DIVINELY" HUMAN SARAH.

SARAH BERNHARDT was a sort of Parisian edition of Theodore Roosevelt in the feminine gender. She was a super woman. She could do a number of things exceptionally well and she could do one thing supremely well. But above everything she could do, was the outstanding phenomenon of what she was,—that overwhelming combination of excessive physical vitality, charm and force of will, which goes under the general head of personality.

Probably the greatest tribute to her acting ability was the fact that thousands of American T. B. M.'s paid as high as $10 per ticket to see her perform, although at no part of the performance had they the slightest idea of what she was talking about. But attendance was not a pose. Bernhardt's art was above language. She was a master of everything theatrical, including pantomime. Every gesture, every pose, every sound and movement was in a sense articulate. A knowledge of French was a convenience. It was not essential.

Judged by conventional moral standards Bernhardt was not all she should have been. There was a time in fact when Boston raised her eyebrows and gave Sarah the cold shoulder. But six or seven years ago no theatre in Boston could hold the crowds that thronged to see her. Boston did not lower her moral standards, she merely did the sensible thing, and raised Bernhardt above them.

The truth is, Bernhardt was a law unto herself. She yielded the sovereignty of her soul to only one master and to that master she was never faithless. Her capacity for love was prodigious, and yet impersonal, she loved hordes of men and women and children, she loved her country, she loved the world, she loved life, but she only really gave herself to one love,—her Art.

Bernhardt, like Roosevelt, dramatized everything including Death. Roosevelt, it will be recalled, wished to die on the field of battle with his face to the enemy. Sarah Bernhardt wished to die on the stage, with her face to the footlights. The wish of neither was gratified. One wonders why. Perhaps because Fate sooner or later always takes a hand, and carefully demonstrates that even supermen and super-women are eventually frustrated and at the end, are merely human and mortal.

DECIDE TO SEND 2 CARLOADS HOGS FROM SO. OREGON

A meeting of the boys of the agricultural class of the local high school was held this morning and an address by L. J. Allen, state leader of boys' and girls' club work, was given.

C. D. Thompson, instructor of the class, states that it has been planned that two car loads of hogs will be sent by the boys of the high schools of Jackson and Josephine counties to the Pacific International Livestock Exposition at Portland next fall.

One carload of Hampshires and one of Berkshires will comprise the shipment. The hogs are to be accompanied by their owners who will pay expenses of the trip, in part at least, from the profit made on the hogs.

Pigs are to be furnished the boys, three pigs to each club member, by the Riverbanks farm near Grants Pass and the Heart o' the Valley ranch near Murphy. Heart o' the Valley ranch will furnish the Hampshires and Riverbank farm the Berkshires.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents, also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Adv.
