Another thing the world needs is more worship and less worship.

The happiest people is one whose placid existence inspires fewest neighbors.

"America for Americans," is patriotism. "Mexico for Mexicans" is damned imperialism.

Ah, well; in a little while the Volstead law will be old enough to cut some teeth.

The small investor is not neglected. Most of the oil stocks are tax free securities.

There are some things you can't buy with money, but people don't appreciate them much.

Still the house with the largest car parked in front of it may be the one with the largest mortgage on it.

Europeans are not so bluff and hearty as Americans, but they are just as good at a hearty bluff.

If a government really wishes to be helpful, it might issue a bulletin on the subject of dodging taxes.

Realism in literature is just the art of exposing a man before he has had time to shave and spruce up.

The thing that worries Retrograde most is the fear that she will do some of the things she threatens to do.

Another way to be satisfied with your lot in life is to keep the back of it cleared of rubbish.

THE LAW WINS.

THE PESTILENT sinners may think they are winners, who pull off their crimes and escape; but sooner or later their luck proves a traitor, and they are bedizened with crepe. Oh, sooner or later, the law, watchful waiter, will gather the reprobates in; the law, never resting, is searching and questioning—there's no profit in sin. The smart sleek figures that justice's rigors are all for the guy lacking brains; he'll work things so quickly and do it slickly he'll have a large roll for his pains. His methods will rattle the sleuths who'd battle with plain garden yeggmen and bums; he'll bring to his stealing the true artist feeling and gather in opulent sums. A while he may flourish, a while he may nourish his dream that the law is outclassed, his little jokes popping on cops and their copping, but justice will get him at last. Yes, sooner or later the law, which is greater than anything founded on crime, will harvest the smarty and he'll join a party that goes to the pen to do time. The law is no speedster, it's slow, gentle reader, its brogans are weighted with lead; a while you may beat it, soon you may cheat it, but ever behind is its tread.

Ye Smudge Pot

By Arthur Perry.

The bunco artists of Colorado, convicted last week, did not mask their schemes with religion. They were after money, not a political office.

THE SQUARE SHOOTER
(Farps, N. D. News)

In answer to the $75,000 breach of promise suit filed against him by Hilda Anderson, 31, and good-looking, Hans Eckstrom alleges that the plaintiff "manifested no interest in him until he secured $300,000, by the sale of Texas oil lands," and asserts that if the heart of Miss Anderson is broken, as she alleges, he is not responsible. Eckstrom, in his answer, cites that in August 1917, he escorted the plaintiff to a Scandinavian picnic, and that she returned to this city in the company of a Minneapolis traveling salesman.

The despicable conduct of the weatherman on Easter Sunday proves again that the Galshevskis should have bayonet attachments on their umbrellas.

Now Charlie Chaplin has gone and smashed himself in the face with one of his own custard pies.

Portland is threatened once more with the coming of a Hearst newspaper. This will be a calamity, as a Hearst newspaper thinks it smart to print all the news.

A Fable: Once upon a time there was a lady who made only one mistake in her life, and never got through talking about it.

WHY WASTE INK?
(Yuba Statesman)

Companionable young man with 1923 Packard, college bred, gentleman first, desires to correspond with estimable young woman. Box 54.

The city sprinkler was out this morning in active competition with the best sprinkler ever created.

It is very annoying when high-toned and wealthy citizens get mixed up with ladies of the always interesting and sometimes exciting underworld. For instance, there is J. Kearsley Mitchell of Philadelphia, involved somewhat with Dorothy Keenan, mysteriously murdered beauty of New York, who, said to relate, was not all she should have been. The gentleman is very sorry—for himself, as they all are, when they get caught.

Ah, what is the cure when life all goes wrong—
When everything's dark for the while?
If things are no longer one grand, sweet song.
The best thing to do is to smile!

No matter at all if your house is afire,
Smile and the fire will go out;
Or if you've just met with an accident dire,
There's nothing to worry about.

Don't worry if Sister shows signs of eloping
Ensnared by some reprobate's guile
You really can't better conditions by moaning—
Forget all about it and smile!

Smile when the dentist is pulling a tooth,
Smile along life's every mile—
Why all that's demanded of you, here, forsooth,
Is just to go around with a smile!

Charles Chaplin in "The Pilgrim"

Charlie Chaplin in the chief attraction now at the Page theatre, appearing in "The Pilgrim," his newest picture, a four-rolled screen. There is another picture on the bill, the lovely Emilie Ferguson, in "The Outcast," a picture strong enough to be the advertised feature, but subordinated to Chaplin for the occasion.

"The Pilgrim" is about an escaped convict who finds a suit of clerical man's clothes and puts it on and, with the money in the pockets, starts west, landing at the little town of Devil's Gulch, where a committee of church folk are waiting at the station to greet their new minister, Rev. Pim. They mistake Charlie for this man, escorting him to the meeting house and force him into the pulpit, where he preaches a sermon on David and Goliath with so vivid gesture and expres-

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor: I give you below an extract from a letter that I received today from one of the largest real estate agents in London. It is in reply to a letter regarding the possible disposal of some of my property in Oregon and may, I think, be of some interest to your readers.

E. P. GUTHRIE, Medford.

"We regret to say that up to the present we have not met with success in being able to interest clients in the purchase of your property."

"We are convinced that the prohibition laws will deter many people from settling in the United States. Day by day in conversation with clients we learn this. People going abroad and having the world to choose from do not wish to be tied down by such laws."

"Again, another thing which militates against people contemplating purchasing lands in the United States is the law which permits of only a certain number of people from this country being allowed to land and settle in the United States each year. This law is certainly going to have very adverse results."

Yours faithfully,
The London & Colonial House & Estate Agency Ltd."
