ANDY GUMP PUTS NEW TICKET IN C. OF C. CONTEST

The following named candidates for the nine vacant places on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce were unanimously endorsed by the Gumpites of this community at an enthusiastic meeting held last night. These men have not been hand-picked, like the thirty-six candidates already in the field, but each one of them is out after the job and will make a hot fight for it. Not one of the lot believes in the office seeking the man.

They have adopted a slogan, a motto and a platform, and have said as many nice things about themselves as they could think of.

Slogan.
We'll tell the world.

Motto.
Rarin' to go.

Platform.
A peach of a booklet will bring in people who have never been touched and money that has never been spent.

A. R. Mason, president Mason Motor company—Modestly claims to handle the best line of cars in the world.

Harry Rosenberg, Bear Creek orchardist—A canny Scotchman; budgets are budgets to him.

John Billings, blacksmith—Will use a hammer on some of the bone-heads hereabouts.

Gordon Voorhies, orchardist—He learned the orchard game while pruning Germans in France and Belgium.

H. W. Conger, undertaker—He specializes in knockers and tightwads.

P. B. Harrison, retired capitalist—Can qualify as the chamber's rich uncle.

W. E. (Bill) Brayton, orchardist and farmer—Strange to say, he don't run his ranch from the Medford Hotel or the University club.

Ed M. White, real estate—Honest and reliable—admits it himself.

R. C. Young, Young's Hardware—He made his escape into this state from California about a year ago. He and Medford are both gainers thereby.

Colonel Ebenezer Bull of Buncom, campaign manager.

P. S.—In a few days voting ballots will be sent out to all members of the Chamber of Commerce. From the eighteen candidates receiving the highest number of votes the nine directors will be selected at a final election.

Colonel Bull requests that every qualified voter cut this ticket out and put it in his shirt pocket for reference when he goes to vote.

Here are a dozen and a half of Medford's leading citizens involved in a plot to show up Southern Oregon.

When you set your Chamber of Commerce ballot, have this list at hand. And don't vote for these men. They are conspiring to disclose everything about our quiet peace-loving village and broadcast it throughout the republic. They have sworn to put Medford on the map.

Shall we allow our privacy to be invaded?

Shall we sit by and allow the world to talk of Medford?

no! No! No!

The following are members of the Craters' ticket, for directors of the Chamber of Commerce. If you want Medford to sleep on, for goodness sake, don't vote for them.

1. Ed M. White, real estate. He's been selling Medford for years—lots of it.

2. Chester Barr, fruit. 100 per cent American—90 per cent for Chester and 10 per cent for the growers.

3. A. J. Vance, manager of the telephone company. "If you can't tell the world, telephone."

4. C. A. Knight, orchardist. "Build more homes and get people here to fill them."

5. Emil Mohr, mine host. Uncanny Irishman. "Budgets is biscuits with me."

6. J. W. Wakefield, insurance and real estate. "Keep the home fires burning."

7. Frank De Souza, lawyer. Not the band leader, but always tooting the big horn for Southern Oregon.

8. Olen Arnsperger, civil engineer. "My hobby—more water for the valley."

9. W. J. Warner, postmaster and politician. "I stand for anything."

10. Hugh B. Rankin, forest supervisor. "Tiller-to-Trail or Bust."

11. Hamilton Patton, Chevrolet and farm machinery. (Pd. Adv.) "To hell with Henry Ford."

12. William Young, garage man. "My motto—Cooperation and exploitation." Wears no collar at all.

13. F. I. Minear, dirt farmer. "More cows and more butter means more money."

14. Fred L. Hegth, druggist. He fixes tightwads.

15. S. T. Richardson, clothier. Restore Governor Walt's life membership in the Fish and Game club.

16. Alex Sparrow, fancy stockman. "Anything to keep Diamond Lake out of Crater Lake park."

17. H. S. Deuel, dry goods. Also collars for any man.

18. Claude C. Cate, county agent. "If elected, I shall abolish bugs and frost in the Rogue river valley."

The Business Men's ticket follows: W. H. Lydard, groceryman, one of our dependable citizens.

J. H. Cochran, life insurance, an experienced and efficient business man.

J. D. Rickert, optician, well known, energetic and conscientious.

J. N. Brownlee, lumberman, prominent in the development of our really greatest asset, timber.

Floyd Hart, banker; earnestly interested in the development of the Rogue River valley.

P. M. Kershaw, orchardist and manufacturer; public spirited worker and—successful.

Volney Dixon, page fence. Everybody knows him and acknowledges that he is a live wire.

Mrs. Marie (Louis) Ulrich. We are reliably informed that Mrs. Ulrich, will be a real member if elected, so let's.

Paul McDonald, tires and pep.

Elmer E. Wilson, M. F. & H. Co. Always on the job for the good of the community.

N. E. Hohall, Southern Oregon Gas Co. The way he placed gas radiators in this community last fall proves him as a salesman.

M. Montgomery, Espeo agent, than which there never was a better.

John R. Tomlin, lumber and box factory. Helping fill a long felt want in the way of box shooks and payrolls.

J. D. Bell, pioneer hotel man. A willing worker for community interests.

E. P. Lawrence, Presbyterian minister. Public spirited and progressive.

C. W. Whillock. The guiding genius of the Golden Rule Mercantile establishment.

Robert W. Clancy, physician, orchardist.

Walter R. Bowne, Busy Corner Motor Co.

"If you believe it, it's so."

We believe the Rogue River valley is the greatest place on earth and we will make the world believe it if you give us a chance.

Respectfully submitted,
ED. M. WHITE, Chairman.

Jinx Record for Friday, the 13th

PORTLAND, Ore., April 13.—Probably the "jinx" day—Friday the thirteenth—hit Captain J. B. Wetherall, aged 75, harder than anyone else, for today he was taken to the state penitentiary at Salem to begin serving a sentence of two years, following his conviction on the charge of polygamy. Officers believed he was the oldest prisoner ever taken from here to the prison.

Captain Wetherall maintained his legal wife at Sumpter, Ore., and had a "second wife" in Portland, according to his confession.

If there are "eye-sores" around your home—shabby sills, scuffed and worn stairs or floors, a dull appearing chair etc., why let them annoy your sensibilities by looking at them constantly?
