

Local and Personal

The weather conditions changed yesterday afternoon rendering the light to heavy frost predicted yesterday morning by the San Francisco weather bureau, for this valley, void. By five or six p. m. it was known by Frost Expert Young that there would be no frost. After midnight a gentle rain began to fall, which during the night and up to this morning at times increased to copious wetness, until in all 24 of an inch had fallen. Rain is the prediction for Sunday.

A much appreciated feature of entertainments on the part of Manager Hunt in his creation of atmosphere for the wonderful film, "Robin Hood," showing at the Page theater this week and whose engagement ends there Saturday night, has been the garbing of the ushers in medieval costume, and the introduction of the picture by having an imitation castle drawbridge raised in front of the screen to the blowing of trumpets by two actors in costume at the beginning of each performance. The costumes were obtained by Mr. Hunt from Seattle. In keeping with the grandeur and massiveness of the film production is the accompanying musical score played with skill by Miss Betty Brown, the organist.

"Restoration of the head-in system of parking, which went into effect today by a proclamation of Mayor C. L. Loomis, resulted in some little confusion in the business district today," says the Ashland Tidings. "Several machines were parked with the front wheels to the curbing while others had the rear wheels at the curbing. Cars will continue to be backed in on certain streets where the grade is sufficient to make this necessary. It is expected that the old system will be observed by all motorists in a short time."
