

PRESIDENT STOPS SALE WAR STOCKS FOR FOREIGN GOVT.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—President Harding has directed the war and navy departments, in a letter addressed to Secretaries Weeks and Denby, not to permit the sale of surplus war stocks, including arms, ammunition or other munitions to any foreign nation.

Announcement of the embargo was made today, after previous statements by government officials that offers had been received from unnamed foreign sources for the purchase of large quantities of arms. One offer is understood to have been made by agents representing the Irish republic, during the insurrection against Great Britain.

President Harding's letter made no mention of any particular government, but applies to all, adding that the war and navy secretaries should take steps to prevent the sales of the prohibited commodities even to Americans who might in turn dispose of them to foreign nations.

PRESIDENT AIDS IN MAKE-UP OF N. YORK TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, April 25.—Aside from the effect of his address on the world court to members of the Associated Press at their annual luncheon yesterday President Harding left behind him when he and his party began their return to Washington after midnight a lot of pleasant memories that grimy fingered printers will tell grandsons seated on their knees when the long evenings come again.

It was a diversified day for the president, one typical of New York. Up early, he spent the morning in political conferences and then gave the first of the important addresses he has planned to make in his advocacy of American participation in the world court. After luncheon with the group of Associated Press members he motored to the new Yankee stadium, laughed at a musical show in the evening and then inspected the new plant of the New York Tribune.

And, not only printers and pressmen, and dirty faced office boys and the men in the delivery room of the Tribune, but thousands of baseball fans, a couple george major league baseball players and Babe Ruth, the self-renovated idol of little lads and big, have got something to remember too. Mrs. Harding was so interested by the events of the day that she had not thought about being tired when midnight came. She only regretted that they had but one day to give to baseball and that it had to be a windy, blustery one that prevented her from accompanying her husband to the ball park to see the Babe smack a home run.

MOSCOW, April.—Though extremely easy to secure under soviet laws, divorces are decreasing in Moscow because of the housing shortage. WASHINGTON, April.—The earth is undergoing no general change of climate. FROST DAMAGES CHERRIES, HOOD RIVER DISTRICT

PORTLAND, Ore., April 25.—Most fruit trees in Oregon have bloomed heavily and the petals are falling from the earlier varieties, according to the weekly crop report of the weather bureau issued here today. Frost caused some damage to peaches in Josephine county and hail and high winds were injurious to cherries in portions of Hood River county.

Winter wheat has a good stand generally and is making a strong healthy growth. Winter rye looks well and the early sown spring crop is coming up nicely. Spring wheat, oats and barley seeding is about complete and, where above the ground, these staples are making rapid advancement.

2 REPUBLICANS PRAISE HARDING FOR N. Y. SPEECH

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Having placed before the country his reasons for advocating American membership in the international court, President Harding returned to his desk today prepared to argue out the differences over the issue which has arisen among republicans.

Among supporters and opponents of the idea alike, the president's address in New York yesterday at the luncheon of the Associated Press was regarded as an unequivocal reaffirmation of his stand in favor of the membership proposal he laid before the senate at the last session. Senators and others who have opposed it have been in conference here for several days and it was indicated today that an opportunity would be found to make known clearly at the White House reasons on which the president's course are based.

Meantime all the leaders were sparing in their predictions of just what the attitude of the administration would mean in the end. Most of them were still studying the phraseology of the New York address and were unwilling to express an opinion until they had advised themselves more fully. The president's train, which left New York late last night, arrived here shortly after seven o'clock and soon afterward Mr. Harding was in his office.

From Representative Graham, republican, Illinois, the president received an endorsement of his stand. Mr. Graham, who is a candidate for republican leadership of the next house, told Mr. Harding he could not understand "this excessive blood pressure" aroused by the president's speech, adding that the policy set forth yesterday was "something all of us republicans have been talking about and advocating for years."

Representative Graham's call at the White House was followed by a visit from Representative Longworth of Ohio, who also has been proposed for the republican house leadership. He discussed yesterday's address briefly with the president and later described it as a "fine speech," and "a splendid clarification of the administration proposals."
