"Hollywood" Draws Crowds, Page
"Hollywood" is proving a sensation at the Page theater, where it plays until tomorrow night. The picture has every sort of appeal, romance, comedy, satire, curiosity, and it is well acted and superbly produced.

One gets a look at the celebrities at work. For "Hollywood," as its name indicates, is about the motion picture colony. It is directly concerned with the efforts of a girl to get into the "movies," an effort that ends in failure.

At Rialto

A thrilling, pounding love story against a picturesque background of rushing railroad trains, railroad yards and railroad men is graphically depicted in "Westbound Limited," at the Rialto theatre till tomorrow night. Ralph Lewis plays the featured role. Ella Hall has the feminine lead. In the supporting cast are Claire McDowell, Johnny Harrison, Taylor Graves, Wedgwood Nowell, David Kirby, Richard Morris and Jane Morgan.

The Stage

"So This Is London"
At the Page theatre Monday night, Nov. 26th, the attraction will be George M. Cohan's international comedy hit, "So This Is London" with Mr. and Mrs. Cohan in the leading roles, supported by the original Chicago company. This comedy success is designed to overcome the national antipathy that seems to persist between America and England. The question is handled in a thoroughly good-natured manner. Of course, it all centers around a love affair between the son of an American multi-millionaire and the daughter of an English peer, the same old story of the rival houses of the Capulets and Montagues, but vastly different in treatment. The head of the American family is dead set against everything British, having no more words to conquer in his own country he comes over to England to twist the lion's tail commercially. The English peer is also intensely patriotic and thoroughly disgusted with everything American. In the end, everything turns out happily, and both families become reconciled to the fact that each has misjudged the other, and that the English and American are very much alike.

An excellent company is provided. Supporting Mr. and Mrs. Cohan are Muriel Hare, Jill Willie, Belle D'Arcy, Chester Morris, Isith Munro, Frank Merlyn, Pacie Ripple and others.
