MIKE YOKEL

Who will wrestle Gus Schneidau at the Armory tonight

Anita Stewart
At F. & E. Theatre

Although "A Question of Honor," Anita Stewart's starring vehicle at the F. & E. theatre, Central Point, Saturday and Sunday, is primarily entertainment that tells an unusually fascinating story in absorbing manner, it carries an excellent lesson for society flappers who have never had any thought of life but to enjoy themselves. The star portrays such a character and visualizes the decision that must be met when an awakening conscience forces a crisis between the luxuries of habit and a matter of honor. The story has been given a splendid production with superb exteriors and a capable supporting cast. Tonight Wm. Desmond in "McGuire of the Mounted," Ruth Roland in "Haunted Valley," and Harold Lloyd

FUR TO FLY AT YOKEL-SCHNEIDAU MATCH TONIGHT

The stage is all set for tonight's armory smother. That it promises to be one of the best of the year goes without saying, since Mike Yokel, the Wyoming "wrestling sheriff" and Gus Schneidau, well known southern Oregon grappler, are to supply the main entertainment.

Yokel arrived in Medford this afternoon husky and in the proverbial "pink of condition." Yokel is a wrestler and there's no arguing that point. Whether or not southern Oregon's proteges can turn the trick is what is puzzling local sport fans. Both Yokel and Schneidau are husky and clever and neither has an advantage on the scales.

Adherents of Schneidau's wrestling ability are predicting that he will outwrestle the big mat man from Wyoming, but they are far from being overconfident. Many who saw Yokel throw Hand at Gold Hill several months ago say that the home boy won't have a show. The solution of the problem this evening will draw a generous house of supporters for both men. These fans will hail from Grants Pass, Gold Hill, Central Point, Ashland and practically all southern Oregon points, as indicated by early ticket sales. The smother will commence at 9 o'clock so as to enable merchants who have their stores open for Christmas trade an opportunity of attending.

Former Medford Folks Guests of Friends

Mr. and Mrs. W. Tyler Smith and son "Bill," stopped in Medford last evening, en route in their car to Sheridan, Oregon, from their home in Los Angeles, to spend Friday with their many friends, all of whom are glad to see them.

They formerly lived in Medford and Tyler was circulation manager of the Daily Sun. He afterwards was circulation manager for the Orchard and Home, a Hearst publication in San Francisco.

For over two years he has been in the tire and supply business for himself in Los Angeles and has built up a splendid business.
