SALEM 'HI' PLAYS AT ASHLAND, FRIDAY

Many Medford basketball fans will journey to Ashland Friday and Saturday nights to see the Salem high school basketball team, coached by Hollis Huntington, a former Medford coach, play the Ashland team. The Medford team plays the Albion and Freshmen teams of the University of Oregon the same nights at Albany and Eugene. The last appearance of a Salem team in this city was last fall, in a football game, that owing to a poor decision by a Salem official caused a thrilling hubbub, and dozens of letters to the paper.

ZEROLINE 'F' OIL FOR FORDS ONLY

Lubrication experts of the Standard Oil company say that they have found something new which they call the "Ford interiority complex" and they have entered the lists to put an end to it.

In substance they say, "Just because a Ford will take a little more punishment than anything else on four wheels, is no reason it should be neglected and allowed to run on an oil that doesn't deliver all the lubrication a first class piece of automotive equipment ought to have."

They charge that thousands of burned-out bearings are caused not so much by too little oil in the crankcase as by the wrong kind of oil.

Zeroline "F" for Fords is the name of the new product which the Standard Oil company offers as the last word in Ford lubrication, developed after six years of experiment by the Standard Oil research staff. The outstanding feature, claimed for the new oil is that it reaches and lubricates perfectly heretofore neglected but vitally important parts, such as the wrist pin bearings, upper half of the cylinder walls, etc. It is also claimed that because it delivers better continuous lubrication with smaller carbon deposits it will increase the Ford owner's gasoline mileage, reduce carbon removal operations and lengthen the car's working life. The retail price of Zeroline "F" for Fords is the same as that of Zeroline oils.
