

LINCOLN CLUB BANQUET IS A G. O. P. JUBILEE

Annual Get-Together of Republicans Takes On Nature Southern Oregon Jubilee With Representatives From Ashland, Grants Pass and Roseburg.

The tenth annual banquet of the Lincoln club of Jackson county at the Hotel Medford last night was the usual gathering of republicans in this section, which however, on this occasion assumed the proportion of a southern Oregon rally with Roseburg and Grants Pass speakers, besides those from Medford. In all about 500 men and women were present, including fifty from Ashland and delegations of about ten each from Roseburg and Grants Pass. The others were from Medford and various other parts of the county. "Keep Coolidge" buttons were at every plate.

H. F. Mulkey of Portland, former resident of Medford and former district attorney of Jackson county, delivered the main speech, an eloquent address on Lincoln. George Neuner, Jr., of Roseburg, former district attorney of Douglas county, and for some time past special prosecuting attorney appointed by Governor Pierce to act in special cases in the various counties was another prominent speaker, as was E. W. Miller of Grants Pass, president of the Josephine county Lincoln club, and Judge C. B. Watson and E. V. Carter of Ashland. These speakers touched strongly on party harmony and enthusiasm, as did local speakers.

Fun and Embarrassment

One of the most amusing features of the banquet was when Toastmaster Gates introduced Mr. Neuner as a widely known republican who had been wandering around in strange fields lately and then said: "We will now hear a few words from one of Sir Walter's persecuting attorneys."

Heartily laughter ensued when the Roseburg man arose, in which he joined. He then launched forth into an excellent short address in which the memory of Lincoln, his deeds and characteristics were briefly dwelt upon, and some of the recent happenings in the republican party. The speaker stopped once and said apologetically he was not at his best because "of that introduction of Pop's."

Naturally some of the speakers, especially Messrs. Mulkey and Neuner made light reference to the Teapot Dome scandal in the republican party, and while deploring it expressed the belief that with President Coolidge at the helm he would adopt every necessary measure and with the assistance of other nationally tried and true republican leaders, would do everything in their power to purify the party, rid it of the smell of oil, and restore it to its natural righteousness.

And naturally the above mentioned and others, to take the curse of this embarrassing subject and rid it of some of its party repulsiveness, dwelt upon the connection of Wm. G. McAdoo, the leading democratic candidate for president, with the scandal.

Former Mayor C. E. Gates, the newly elected president, presided as toastmaster and made a hit as such because of his brief introductions which greatly shortened the duration of the long program. The banquet was ended a few minutes after 11 p. m., making it one of the shortest Lincoln banquets in recent years.

The big banquet room was profusely decorated with huge American flags everywhere and with the pictures of the presidents from Washington to the present time on the walls, and with Lincoln's picture in the center over the speaker's table, flanked on each side by those of Harding and Coolidge.

Another striking feature of the banquet was the excellent menu served with prompt dispatch by a large corps of waiters.

How to build up your Weight

To be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus a health, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus.

That's why S.S.S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S.S.S. will build them.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Resolutions Adopted

Among the resolutions adopted were ones relating to the deaths of the late President Harding and D. W. Luke, the prominent local G. A. R. man who was one of the charter members of the Lincoln club.

Interspersed with the program were selections by Alford's orchestra and vocal solos by Harry Scougall.

The gathering was called to order by Cole Holmes, vice president of the club, because of the absence of the retiring president, Miss Grace Chamberlain of Ashland, who is enroute home from the Hawaiian Islands. Rev. W. Judson Oldfield of Ashland delivered the invocation. Immediately the guests were through dining the following new officers were elected by acclamation:

President, C. E. Gates of Medford; vice president, A. C. Marsters of Roseburg; secretary, A. J. Cross of Medford (re-elected), and treasurer, Vernon Vawter of Medford.

Coolidge's Tribute to Lincoln

President Gates assumed charge as toastmaster. Miss Ora Cox of Medford read President Coolidge's tribute to Lincoln as issued in his proclamation January 30, 1919, when the present president was governor of Massachusetts. Captain H. A. Canaday, now registrar of the land office at Roseburg, then recited in deep voice and with excellent elocution Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Then came H. F. Mulkey's address, and the various other speeches, including one by E. V. Carter of Ashland who had come to the banquet on crutches, who had never missed a Lincoln banquet until last year, because of the accident which crippled him. His remarks constituted one of the very best short addresses ever heard at a local club banquet.

E. W. Miller of Grants Pass and Judge C. B. Watson also made addresses of interest, as did Mrs. W. B. Robinson of Medford, and Dick Posey of Ashland, the well known poet of the Rogue River valley, entertained with some of his original poems of wit, humor, satire and homely philosophy. As usual the audience could not get enough of this and the poet responded to encores.

Mr. Miller's address was mainly devoted to the wives of the past presidents, in which he proposed a toast to Nancy Hank Lincoln, Judge Watson's interesting talk, was based on his personal acquaintance with the time of Lincoln, the formation of the republican party and the times he had heard Lincoln speak.

"This Party of Mine," was the topic of Mrs. W. B. Robinson's address, in which she urged all republican women to familiarize themselves with present day issues and candidates, local, state and national, so that at the spring primaries they can vote intelligently and with judgment.

The banquet closed with the singing by the audience of two verses of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

When Toastmaster Gates asked if there was any one present who had ever heard Abraham Lincoln make an address Judge C. B. Watson and Mrs. Hattie E. Riley stood up. Mrs. Riley, widow of Capt. W. L. Riley, who lived here three years ago, and formerly lived in Lincoln, Ill., and said she knew Mr. Lincoln personally, that he had visited at their home often and that she had heard him talk and also debate with Stephen A. Douglas.

Telegrams Received

Telegrams and letters of regret at not being able to attend the banquet were received from Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, United States Senators Charles L. McNary and Robert N. Stanford, Congressman W. C. Hawley, Ralph Williams, national republican committeeman; Walter L. Tooze, chairman Republican State committee; Charles E. Woolverton and R. A. Bean, judges United States court; Henry J. Bean, associate justice supreme court; Edgar B. Piper, editor of the Oregonian; L. R. Wheeler, manager of the Portland Telegram; I. H. Van Winkle, atorney general; Sam Kozier, secretary of state; Judge John Knowles, of Le Grande; I. P. Hoff, state treasurer; R. A. Booth; Clyde G. Huntley, internal revenue collector; A. E. Burghdoff, state game warden; L. N. Fetschner, member of the state game commission; Joseph A. Linville, state prohibition officer; Clarence A. Hotchkiss, United States marshal; I. L. Patterson, state manager of the Coolidge campaign; T. B. Kay, ex-state treasurer; Lawrence T. Harris, ex-associate justice supreme court; Wallace M. McConnell, attorney of Portland; Bruce Dennis, editor of the LaGrande Observer; Geo. A. White, adjutant general, and Will G. Steele of Eugene.

Grace Chamberlain, president of the Jackson County Lincoln club, wired her regrets from San Francisco at not being able to be present and preside.

One of the impressive features of the banquet each year is the presence in a body of members of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Women's Relief Corps. There were sixteen of these veterans of the sixties and their wives, or widows of veterans present last night.

Beside them sat a number of veterans of the Spanish-American war and their wives, twelve in all. They also are a feature of the annual meetings.

A large number of World war veterans and their wives were present and many of the boys are active in the club and some are officers in it. The guests from Grants Pass included Wilford Allen, Louis Carson, J. L. Stanborough, I. A. Robie, A. B. Cornell, Dr. J. C. Smith, W. E. Newcomb, E. N. Miller, E. E. Blanchard.

The delegates from Roseburg included: A. C. Marsters, C. E. Heimline, George Bacon, J. N. Thorne, W. P. Chapman, R. R. Wood, J. H. Booth, George Neuner, Capt. and Mrs. H. A. Canaday.

Greetings were exchanged by wire by the local club and the Lincoln clubs in session at Portland and St. Helens.

At each plate was a leaflet containing two verses of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," with a "Keep Coolidge" button pinned to each one.

Mr. Mulkey's Address on Lincoln

In his eloquent address on Lincoln B. F. Mulkey spoke partly as follows: "Lincoln was born at the right time, in the right place, and under the right conditions, to make him the man we honor tonight. He was born in the south, raised in the north, lived in the west, and studied in the east. He came into early manhood in central Illinois. At his north in that state were the grandchildren of New England, New York and Pennsylvania, and at his south the grandchildren of Virginia, for Virginia was southern Illinois' grandmother. In Illinois, the grand melting pot for the amalgamation of all shades of belief, he lived at its center and touched elbows with both extremes."

Lincoln's honesty and sagacity were dwelt on by the speaker, who then continued: "The party was divided. Lincoln, the republican nominee was elected. Lincoln had won because he was right and this country is finding out that the best politics and the best political expediency lies in open, frank, avowed honest statement of positive conviction, with clearness and distinctness."

A Great Politician

"This man was not only 'Honest Abe' but was the best politician that ever lived. Political sagacity and honesty in the last analysis go hand in hand. When will the young men and others of this nation learn and abide this great truth?"

Lincoln stood squarely upon the constitution. He ascertained what the fathers who framed it thought on the great question then dividing the people. After the Douglas debates in the Cooper Union speech in New York, he analyzed the attitude of 'the fathers' in the constitutional convention, and their subsequent votes, whenever they appeared in congresses and legislatures, and he arrived at the conclusion that the fathers thought and taught that slavery would one day pass out and become only rudimentary. It required the New York Tribune three weeks to verify the facts of that great speech, and then it was published and sent out as a campaign document.

"When Lincoln clearly knew what the constitution taught on any subject, there he stood. Loyalty to the constitution was his political religion. Were he living today he would try every measure, policy, movement, by the test of the constitution. For the constitution was wrought just after all classes and beliefs had fought out the revolution, commercialism, exploitation, capitalism, tumultuous self-seeking, at that moment had been laid upon the altar of the general welfare, and the constitution was the highest expression of those great fathers who had developed a fortitude and a love for their country unsurpassed and unsurpassable. If we would get guidance from the life of Lincoln we can here and now determine that when called upon to embark in any great enterprise of a political nature that we will measure it by the standards of the constitution, as Lincoln did."

Majesty of Character.

"On April 4th, 1860, Lincoln was inaugurated president. He followed the puny, vacillating administration of James Buchanan. Arms and arsenals were in the hands of the south. A president of the Confederacy had been elected. Eleven states were seceding. He closed his inaugural address admonishing the south to remain friends and to avoid conflict,—he said: 'I am loath to close. We are not enemies but friends. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic cords of memory stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land will yet swell the chorus of the union when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature.' And when the war was nearing its close and Lincoln was being again inaugurated, the majesty of his character and the breadth and depth of his sympathy was shown in the closing words of that inaugural address—

"With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphans. To do all which may achieve and cherish a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

"The final test of a man is the character test, and as we approach this great tranquil, well poised, undisturbed, magnanimous man, his grandeur of character looms larger and larger in the distant horizon. And when the silver queen of night dances out through the Golden Gate and goes on across the Pacific sea to hold midnight court with her Australian stars there in 'barbarous Archipelago, infant peoples will, with the dawn of their civilization, lift their hands and voices in love and admiration of Abraham Lincoln, the savior of his country and the emancipator of a race.'"

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Carter of Ashland who were in Medford to attend the Lincoln banquet, remained over night in the city.

EAGLE PT. LAD HELD IN JAIL ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Mark Carvin Winkle, age 23, a resident of the Eagle Point district, is held by the Jackson county authorities in the county jail pending an investigation of alleged bigamous conditions prevailing in the romances of the young man. The investigation was instigated by his mother-in-law, and was before the last grand jury, but no definite action was taken.

According to Sheriff Terrill, the records at Bend, Oregon show Winkle was married in 1921 to Audrey Sablin of that city, and a year later to Mildred Atwell, whose relatives live on the Crater Lake highway, just outside the city limits. Assistant District Attorney Winfield R. Gaylord, says Winkle admits both marriages, declares that the first one was annulled, but has no legal papers to show it. The authorities maintain no divorce was secured, as far as they can find out. Until the matter is adjusted, Winkle must languish in jail.

The sheriff says that when he sent Deputy Alden after Winkle, with a warrant, the gentleman laid down on the kitchen floor and announced: "If you take me, you'll have to take me dead."

The deputy dragged the determined youth out into the yard, by his legs, where he clutched the bottom of a young fir tree so tenaciously that the limb of the tree could not tear him loose, returning without him when he promised to report personally the next day.

When Winkle failed to show up, per promise, Sheriff Terrill went to Eagle Point and arrested the young man bringing him to Jacksonville. He was docile. The following day he asked the sheriff to take him to Eagle Point to some bonds, and the sheriff took him, as he had business in the vicinity. In his old haunts, Winkle again adopted a stay or die policy, and reclined on the floor.

"I ran a razor on him," said the sheriff. "I made a move like I was going to yank my pistol. This was too much for his father. He said, 'Mark, get up off that floor and go with Charlie, or I'll take you.' Mark hopped right up and came along like a good fellow."

W. O. W. MINSTREL SHOW AT ARMORY FEBRUARY 20TH

The Woodman Minstrel press agent gave out the following today: "Oh boy! Don't you miss out on this W. O. W. Minstrel at the Armory Wednesday night, February 20. Bigger, better and grander. Going to crack some of your faces. You who have not laughed for years. So better prepare and get your face all oiled up for the one big 2 1/2 hours of laughter of the year. Nothing before like it and possibly never again. Remember, customers, the boys taking part in this minstrel are all local talent and you are interested in knowing what amount of ability they have along this line. We tell you it's wonderful, but you'll have to come out and see it to enjoy it. Stars—we'll tell you. Every one a star and you'll agree that never before have you seen a home talent in the circus of professionals before. We can promise you even more than this, but what's the use, you'll have to be the judge. When we tell you that we have solo voices, soft shoe dancers, clog dancers and quartets that really rank in a professional class you'll say it can't be. Well, we can promise you all of this and some more."

THE EXTRA DAY

When the present system of recording time was established, it was found necessary to add one day to each fourth calendar year. This is such a year. One extra day to be added to the year's production will mean thousands of dollars added to this year's payrolls.

All time is valuable and in a busy world, twenty-four additional hours in a year can mean much. Don't waste them. Take that extra day's earnings and bank it.
