Today is the end of the month and also the end of the quarter for the postoffice department, and consequently Postmaster Warner and assistants are busy compiling figures. Indications this morning were that the receipts of the local postoffice both for the month and quarter would show a substantial increase over the same time in previous years.

A retrial of the case against Dr. E. J. Billik, charged with manslaughter, will in all probability be asked by prosecuting Attorney W. T. Miller. It was announced today from the office of the district attorney. The jury reported at noon yesterday that it was unable to agree on a verdict, being hopelessly divided between acquittal and conviction. Judge C. M. Thomas discharged the jury, after the foreman had announced that they would not be able to arrive at any verdict. The jury went behind closed doors Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, following the instructions by the judge. Early that afternoon they returned to again receive instructions and that evening reported that they would be unable to arrive at a verdict. The six to six vote stood throughout the night and all of Sunday morning. The vote stood the same way when they reported back to the judge—Grants Pass Courier.

The United States forest service is about to try out a new plan in livestock grazing experiments. Plots are being laid out in the Whitman national forest in the Blue mountains in order to determine the feasibility of grazing logged-off lands in process of reforestation. D. C. Ingram, associate grazing examiner says the plan entailed the fencing off of small plots to study results of such grazing in relation to forest fire hazard and to determine whether such advantages would be realized by the retarding of new tree growth. Approximately 125,000 cattle and 454,000 sheep are pastured on nearly 6,000,000 acres in the Blue mountain region from three to six months every summer.

BEAR HUNTING BY MOTOR TRUCK IS LATEST WRINKLE

Along with the good roads, autos and other modern improvements which are greatly developing the hill districts, hunting with guns, instead of being an arduous task for hunky men seems to be gradually taking a more luxurious nature, and one may yet see the day that Medford sportsmen carry along with their rifles or shot guns, camp stools or pads.

The latest freak story of wild game hunting has reached the city from Diamond lake, although there are a number of other high reputation sections to be heard from. This story puts the fishermen with their woad tales to guessing, but they may be able to stage a comeback to offset it.

O. M. Murphy, who drives the supply truck between Diamond Lake and Medford started out for Medford last Sunday morning and about ten minutes after leaving the lake saw a big black bear ambling along some distance ahead in the road. In a spirit of amusement he speeded up the truck. The bear, hearing the big motor coming, increased his speed for a distance, but as the truck kept gaining fast on him, decided to seek safety in a big tree not far from the road, which he climbed and crawled out on a limb.

Here is where the bear made a huge mistake, for as Murphy reached the vicinity his comic spirit changed to that of the wild game hunter. Murphy backed up his truck until it was beneath the high limb. Then he drew his rifle, fired one shot and the bear fell dead down off the limb into the rear of the truck. The driver then turned the truck around and speeded back to Diamond lake with his "meat."

Ed Lampport and Vern Van Dyke are now endeavoring to sell Murphy some golf clubs with which to hunt cougars.
