PASTOR'S WIFE PUT IN FURNACE DEAD, NEW CLUES PROVE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Prosecutor John R. King is convinced that Mrs. Clarence V. Sheatsley, wife of the pastor of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church, whose practically cremated body was found in the furnace of the parsonage last night, was either murdered and cast into the furnace, or that she committed suicide and was placed there by some one who sought to cover up the act. Just where these theories would lead him today was not disclosed. He announced he would interview a woman at Lithopolis, who, the prosecutor said, had lunch with the Sheatsley family on the day of the tragedy. Minute search of the Sheatsley home by investigators yesterday brought forth what Mr. King termed as "important discoveries," ending to show, he said, that the pastor's wife was a victim of murder. Brownish crimson stains, which may prove to be human blood, were found on a number of articles, including a table covering, on a pair of trousers, and on a rug found in a vacant lot near the house. It also was found directly above the furnace door. Another find which Mr. King said he considered important, was a bottle containing half an inch of crimson fluid, which chemists declared resembled human blood. Red finger prints on a clothes shut door in the cellar were also discovered. The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley, who with his four children is at Paris, Ohio, visiting relatives in a telephone conversation, declared the stains were probably rabbit blood, he having shot several while hunting on Saturday before the tragedy. The minister, when informed that a bottle of poisonous acid, which authorities said was missing on the night of the tragedy, from the medicine cabinet, had been found in the cabinet yesterday, said he was glad that it had been located. The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley believes his wife committed suicide by casting herself into the furnace after becoming violently insane, according to a statement he made to Mr. King last Wednesday.

BROW NO INDEX TO ONE'S MENTALITY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—If you have a low brow it is no sign you are one; neither can you lay claim to high-browism simply by possessing the physical dimensions. The conclusion that high brows and low brows are no indication of mentality or lack of it was presented to an audience in a lecture here last night by Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology of the national museum. "Long, narrow heads with high, sloping forehead," Dr. Hrdlicka said, are currently supposed to denote a high intelligence and low, broad foreheads with rounded craniums are similarly low degree of mentality. This is absolutely a fallacy, and scientists are now convinced that such characteristics have no bearing on a man's mind.

The Screen

Norma Talmadge in "Secrets." "Secrets," with Norma Talmadge as the star comes to the Hunt's Craterian tomorrow. "Secrets" is well staged, well directed and expensively cast. But these are not the things which make it great. Norma Talmadge's acting raises the production to a level of beauty and poetry and excellence never before attained upon the screen. In this picture she fulfills the brilliant promise of "Smilin' Through" of nearly four years ago, and far surpasses even that screen classic. In "Secrets" Miss Talmadge is a young girl of 18, a young wife of 23, a matron of 39, and a frail old gentlewoman of more than 70 years of age. The play is the story of her love for John Carlton, her husband. The situations run all the way from light comedy to tragedy; from melodrama to society drama, and the settings and social backgrounds vary from English provincialism to the log hut of a struggling cattleman in Montana and then to the drawing room of a wealthy and titled society leader in mid-Victorian London. "Secrets" has been a stage success in this country and in England for seven years.

Viola Dana at Rialto. "Open All Night," which opens today at the Rialto theater, is said to be something different in the line of screen entertainment. It is filled with humor and has a novel story to tell. Viola Dana, Jetta Goudal, Adolphe Menjou and Raymond Griffith are featured in the principal roles. Unique? That doesn't half describe it. With an unusually entertaining plot revolving about the annual Six-Day Bike Race in Paris. Viola Dana's piquant personality is particularly fascinating in the role of the pampered wife. Opposite her, in the role of the too polished, too sophisticated husband, is Adolphe Menjou. A Spatt Family comedy, International News and Viach at the organ are other features on the bill.

Quakes in Anatolia. LONDON, Nov. 25.—Many towns in Anatolia were shaken by an earthquake Saturday night, says a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Constantinople. The new railroad station at Ouchak was destroyed and considerable damage was done elsewhere.

Boy Scout Movement

Article No. 2
The Mail Tribune has arranged to present a series of articles which began on November 24, giving information concerning the Boy Scouts of America and of Medford. Look for these articles if you want to know the facts.

The Counter Attack
When a boy's mind is occupied with clean, appealing activities the doors of it are closed to temptations which knock with desire to enter. The hardest thing for parents and teachers to combat is that insidious propaganda of evil which the unoccupied boy picks up. They can recognize it in his countenance, in his growing reticence and unresponsiveness. But it is beyond reach. He will not talk it out. The boy scout movement has the preventive method and it has the counter attack of such conditions. No greater thing for the Medford of tomorrow could be done than to enlist all of the 450 eligible boys of this city in the Boy Scouts of America. It is a name they will proudly assume if the people of Medford will provide the means and ways. It is Medford's splendid opportunity to do this as we will continue to tell you.

The Trail of the Boy Scout.
The Boy Scout movement has passed the experimental stage. There may be modifications of it in the future looking to even greater efficiency, but its worth has been proven so effectively that none needs to question its being a national asset. The scout has written his trail in the open places of nature. Boys have by means of scouting learned to know nature and to love it. The exercise of body, mind, and soul has been in the great out-of-doors as much as possible. Healthful conditions are thus supplied for the proposed exercise in all the three fundamental lines.

In the Home
But the trail of the scout has also been blazed in the home. The boy who is taught the necessity of obedience in connection with the things he personally wanted to do cannot help taking that lesson into his home life. He will more readily obey his parents than before. Have you known boys that didn't like to "wash behind the ears?" There have been some of these, though perhaps not in your home. The boy had difficulty in understanding that the dirt he couldn't see was over evident to others. When that boy has been taught cleanliness by the scout method you will not have to direct his attention to such unclean areas. But more important yet is the cleanliness of mind which the scout learns in his regular course. The test of promiscuous contact with boys who know too much in the wrong way will not be met among his fellow scouts. Clean, right thinking is constantly held before the scout as a standard to be maintained. If by chance the opposite for a moment shows its face the frown of other scouts soon puts it to flight and forbids its reappearance. Scouts do not bring the heads of parents to shame and humiliation. That is the trail of the scout in the home. Kindness, cheerfulness, and reliability taught in scouting induce a home reflex that brings smiles of happiness to parents' faces and smooths the wrinkles from their brows.

In the school
The boy scout movement does not aim to "assume the responsibility of either home or school for the boy, but to supplement and intensify the training of both, in character formation. The relation of the scout movement to the school is one of the closest co-operation and mutual helpfulness. One high school principal has described scouting by saying: "It has done what no scholastic has ever done before—made the boy want to learn." Teachers, therefore, like parents, have an easier time with scouts. There is no trouble about the boy learning when he "wants to." All sorts of methods have been tried to make the boy want to learn. The boy scout method has come out of this same human laboratory and it is an experiment that has been successful. This is the trail of the scout in the school.

The Scout in the Church.
As we have shown in the previous articles, the scout movement is absolutely non-sectarian both in principle and in practice. But its program provides recreational activities which are easily adapted as an adjunct to the work of the church and the Sunday school. It serves an important need in keeping the boy in contact with the religious activities of his own church. He does not get the desire to graduate so evident in growing boys. Scouting does not specifically teach religion, but it does both directly and indirectly inculcate those ideals which will help boys to put in practice every day the religious faith which may be theirs.
