PEDESTRIANS SLIP AND CARS SKID AS RAINFALL FREEZES

The ungodly cold spell, which had been on for over a week past, broke last night but in such an unexpected manner that, owing to a rain starting in about 10 p. m. and freezing to the sidewalks and pavements, it made walking difficult for people going home after that hour.

It continued to rain this way all night and as fast as the precipitation reached terra firma it froze.

Thus the ground, sidewalks and pavements were a mass of ice from this morning up to 9-30 o'clock, making walking very hazardous and making it difficult going for cars.

Many a person had one or more falls on their way to work this morning, and all Medford people out of doors were walking stiff-legged with short and cautious steps.

Cars were skidding right and left—that is those which were going at all—for many cars stood still on the icy glaze while their wheels revolved.

A number of car owners on seeing conditions outside left their cars at home and chanced it on foot.

A bachelor newspaper man, who doesn't believe in Santa Claus blithely stepped out of his hotel this morning, whistling as he started for this office, until he stepped on the sidewalk and unexpectedly landed on his hip.

He fell on the other side, which evidently started him thinking about irrigation projects, as he was heard to emit a number of well-ornamented damns.

By 10 a. m. it was thawing fast as the temperature began warming up, and soon a light slush replaced the icy coating. Fortunately there was no snow to melt heroically as in other parts of Oregon where a sudden thaw may create bad flood conditions.

More or less rain and a warmer temperature are predicted for tonight and Sunday. In all, last night the fall of rain amounted to .27 of an inch. The minimum temperature of this morning was 25.5 degrees above, following a maximum of 37 degrees yesterday.

MEDFORD OPERA TO BE BROADCASTED BY RADIO TONIGHT

The many friends of the Medford singers who are principals with the Brandon Light Opera company, which has been playing Seattle this week, will have the opportunity tonight of hearing their rendition of the "Singing Maid" opera by radio.

This will begin at 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock, as near as can be learned here.

In this company are the following well known Medford singers and players: Ed Andrews, Victoria Andrews, George Olson and his wife, nee Ruth Hamilton, Mrs. Hinton, George Maddox and Charles Hazlrig.

The company has been on the road for some time past, having started in at Salt Lake City. Next week the company plays Aberdeen, Wash., and Victoria, B. C. If it plays in Medford at all the time will be in February, or later.

The Medfordites in the company had a joyous Christmas feast together at Seattle, dining on home products, as their relatives and some intimate friends got together here the first of the week and rounded up a huge turkey with the trimmings, and other good holiday viands, and sent this Yuletide food supply to Seattle.
