The fire department was summoned by phone to the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Perry, 921 Reddy ave., at midnight last night, because of a small fire scare originating from the fire place, which caused slight damage and was extinguished by the firemen with the chemical apparatus. This is why the firemen are today smoking a box of fine cigars, the gift made to them this morning by Mr. Perry.

Fred Duke, who operates a motor bus line between Medford and Klamath Falls and between Bend and Klamath Falls was freed by District Judge Deleh at Portland Tuesday on a charge of carrying passengers into Portland on a bus not licensed for such routing. His arrest took place on December 18, and Duke entered a plea of not guilty although admitting the facts. Duke said that the heavy snow storm caused his busses to be storm bound in southern Oregon and that he took several men to Portland who found it impossible to work because of the weather. He did so more as an accommodation, he said, and without any intent to evade the payment of the lawful license fee.

Clashes between Mayor O. H. Johnson and members of the city council at their first meeting last night ended in a deadlock over the appointment of a street commissioner and chief of police. As a result, Chief of Police G. W. McNabb, and Street Commissioner Frank Merrill are still in office, and will remain there until some name, acceptable to the councilmen, is suggested by Johnson. It may be that these two men will be appointed for the office. In the case of Merrill, the councilmen appeared determined to keep him in office, in spite of Mayor Johnson's statement that he was supporting C. W. Fraley, former street commissioner. Thornton Wiley, new councilman, was the only member of the board to vote in favor of the acceptance of Mayor Johnson's recommendation. In the case of McNabb, three of the five members of the council refused to accept J. W. Hatcher, Mayor Johnson's nominee for office. —Ashland Tidings.
