YREKA REPORTS MEDFORD CRATERS

The invasion of Yreka last Monday night by the Crater club is reviewed in part as follows by the Yreka Journal:

"Of all the big times had in Yreka of late the reception of the Craters club of Medford and the Llon's club South Oakdale avenue and Dunsmilt takes the cake, Every street, thing from the invitation to the final Masses at 8 and 10:30 a. m. windup was unique and interesting, as well as decidedly amusing. "The bunch from Medford was met at the train at Montague by Yreka motorists at 7 p. m., and hurried over to the Yreka Inn, and before 8 p. m.

ment continued as the hungry cave men and lions ravenously devoured the food which was brought on in five courses and was delicious in the extreme. Bob Boyle, the toastmaster was a fierce number and he did not hesitate to call 'em down with his huge gong as fast as they were called to the floor for a speech, and there were only a few who got through. Falis, but we are getting plenty by the rubber tire route.

'On February 1st we expect to form a new state extending from Grants Pass to Dunsmuir and we expect to have a port of entry through Happy Camp valley and name it the Port of Medford, and the state fair grounds will be located twelve miles north of Ashland. The state capital would be at the Craterian theater, 62 miles north of Yreka, a fine building for a capital. The penitentiary would be located at Yreka, as you are never going to pave and you would then have plenty of crushed rock to pile on your roads. The asylum would be located at Weed with Don Colvig in charge and there he would have plenty of room for all his patients. The state university would be placed at Ashland where the old normal school buildings are located, We had this in mind when these huildings were erected.

"The institutions for the deaf and blind would be separated, the school for the deaf at Dunsmuir where there for the deaf at Dunsmuir where there couldn't be anything else; the school for the blind at Hilt where there is inothing to see and there would be no danger of anyone who received his sight losing it again or going crazy. We believe Grants Pass would be a good place for the pest house.

"As to the state officers, the Callfornia Oregon Power company has a lot of paid men who have nothing to do except look after other people's business. We would have these fellows work for the state and the power company pay them. You may not like it, but you fellows in northern California would have nothing to do with the manipulations.

MINING NEWS OF SOUTHWESTERN OREGON

To the Millionaire Mine we start zone was rich in free gold, and all very approximately from the city of these mines were rich in free gold, Gold Hill. The valley of the Rogue, and all were heavy producers. As soon generally narrow, and to the tourist, as the exidized metal was worked out devoid of much area suitable to farm- however, the easy methods no longer ing is peculiar in the numerous val-leys debauching into it and at the ent management. The great body of leys debauching into it and at the point of entrance as narrow and unpromising as the main one. Driving up, they usually open out into large areas of meadow and level plateau, and in the aggregate compose a surprisingly large producing area. The Willow Springs road, the path to the Millionaire Milne, penetrates such a valvey and the roadbed being good and the grades easy, the few miles before turning up the Millionaire private way as pastoral and very attractive. The only visible indication on mining is the three-inch pipe, which runs for three miles from the Rogue River and which was laid to furnish water for placer mining in the carly days. It is an index of the richness of the virgin ground that such an expense should promise profit. The rise is gradual and just before topping the summit to cross into the Medford valley, we turn to the left and drive from the miles along a winding road, graveled with the waste rock from the mile, till we arrive at the cluster of buildings marking the proper milling and recovery. The gold valley, we turn to the left and drive for hearly two miles along a winding road, graveled with the waste rock from the mine, till we arrive at the cluter of buildings marking the working site of the Millionaire activity. We shall drive directly to the reservoir, a concrete pool on a slight eninence above the mill, and thereby get a birdseye view of the eight hundred and thirty-five acres of patented land which comprise the holdings of the mine. We are nearly in the center of a huge amplitheatre, one lip of which is broken out, forming the kap through which we came. The edge of the bowl is granite, and it is evident just was once a mud volcano. It is probable that there was little overflow, but when we go down into the mine we can see clearly the stirred up condition of the rock, caused by the bubbling up and stirring of the molten mass. The granite rim has eroded to a smooth ridge and is seamed and streaked with quartz veins. These are often rich, and the eroded material fed the rich placers which surround the hill, the pay having been found chiefly in the south and west, the largest drainage area. While the heyday of the placers is forty years past, as late as last summer good pay, in some cases in large nuggets, was taken our of one of the contributing veins.
