The Screen

Vaudeville Bill Tonight. Bert Leigh and company in the interesting comedy, "Five Minutes From the Station," a domestic playlet that has many hearty laughs and just a bit of heart interest, are the regular headliner of the new Western or Orpheum, Jr., vaudeville at the Hunt's Criterion theatre. The Peten Troupe of Foot Jugglers, three men and a woman, do some marvelous things, throwing one another about in the air and Quinn and Caverly in "Done in Oil" get many laughs for their comedy. Jessie Millar, cornet soloist, shows herself to be mistress of that instrument and of the Italian piano accordion as well. Her act is well liked. Earl Faber and Murgie, the latter a beauty from the "Follies," present bits from the late musical comedies and revues, and put over their songs to much applause.

The usual good moving pictures and Hunt's Criterion Theatre orchestra, under the direction of Wilson Waite, completes the bill.

Ramon Navarro Coming. "The Red Lily," which is to be the Hlato Theatre attraction today, tomorrow and Thursday, is a case in which there should be perfect harmony between author and director—a situation in which there is often much friction when pictures are made.

Nihil has set his scene in France, the start in picturesque Brittany and then Paris in whose maelstrom of life a boy and girl are whirled to destruction and then hurled together again to seek regeneration.

At first the peaceful life of a village with a boy and girl loving one another with a great love, but parental wrath on the part of the rich father of the boy, who refuses to have his son mate with the daughter of a cottager, sends the young lovers to Paris to seek happiness there.

Accident separates them, and circumstances see them down into the depths, the life of the thief for the boy and the woman of the streets for the girl.

Once more the god of chance throws the dice and they meet again to begin the upward climb, eventually reaching the heights.

Nihil picked Ramon Navarro to be his John and Edith Bennett for the Marie of the story.

Harry Langden in a Mack Sennett, "The Kicking Youth," International News and a "Peggy" at the organ are added features on the bill.

H. C. (Clyde) Hazelrigg, former local resident, passed through Medford Sunday on his way from his home in Oakland, Calif., to Portland on official business for Sherman Clay and Co., with whom he is associated. Mr. Hazelrigg left here some seven years ago to go with this firm as salesman in their Oakland store, and since that time has made noticeable progress in the musical world of the bay territory.

Two local young men were given a warning this morning by the sheriff's office, after having been apprehended by officers "parking" last night. The girls with them were reported to have been about 15 years of age. The sheriff's office is issuing a warning that parking along the "highways and byways" will come in for considerable investigation as the officers are working nights as well as days.—Grants Pass Courier.
