

Local and Personal

In observance of St. Patrick's day last evening there were a number of social affairs throughout the city. A number of children, aware that it was a holiday of some kind that needed juvenile observance, did not know just in which way to celebrate, but took a chance and followed Halloween tactics until called home by their parents.

A record crowd is expected to turn out tonight for the American Legion benefit dance, which will be held in the Oriental Gardens at the Natatorium. $1.25 per couple. 305*

A man answering the description of Bert Hill, wanted for the murder of Fred Smith in Weed late last October, was taken into custody and lodged in the city jail here late Tuesday afternoon by Chief of Police George McNabb. The man denies any connection with the California Crime, but evidence now in McNabb's hands points toward him as the man wanted by the Stikky authorities. Hill was arrested by McNabb when Hill's wife notified the chief that her husband had refused to support her. She swore out a complaint charging him with non-support and McNabb, when he served it on Hill was struck with the likeness between the suspect and the man wanted for the Weed murder.—Ashland Tidings.

With the work on the seventh story well under way, those viewing the structure may now obtain some idea of the height to which the new Lithia Springs Hotel will tower when completed. Already the building has reared itself many feet higher than anything else in the city, and with two additional stories and the parapet yet to be added it is certain that the boast of those who originated the hotel idea, that a magnificent view of the surrounding country could be obtained from the top of the structure, will come true.—Ashland Tidings.

DR. RICKERT'S EYE TALKS

BACKWARD SCHOOL CHILDREN OFTEN NEED GLASSES

From authoritative sources we learn that fully seventy-five per cent of school children who are considered "backward" in their studies, are learning their lessons slowly because of defective sight. Before being sent to school each child's eyes should be examined by a competent optometrist.
