GERMAN ELECTION PROMISES TO BE A CLOSE CONTEST

BERLIN, April 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Former Chancellor Marx, choice of the Weimar coalition or republican bloc, and Field Marshal Hindenburg, champion of the right of the united right, today were on the last stretch of their race for the presidency of the German republic, with neither expected to have a runaway in tomorrow's polling. Political leaders say the result is fully as problematic as was the contest in the United States between Charles Evans Hughes and Woodrow Wilson in 1916.

With no tangible figures or other data available, speculators are occupying themselves with guessing at the whereabouts of stay-at-home voters and the extent to which Von Hindenburg will profit by ballots cast for complimentary or sentimental reasons.

Previous election statistics wholly fail to suggest a basis for computation as tomorrow's balloting will proceed to a large extent under complete disregard of party lines. If the total vote falls below 28,000,000, which is 10,000,000 less than the number of qualified voters in Germany, it is believed that Dr. Marx will command a safe majority. On the other hand, if the turnout of voters advances the total poll to more than 30,000,000 there is belief that Von Hindenburg will benefit by the increase.

The field marshal's managers are depending on his popularity as a war hero and his reputed non-partisanship.

Even if the republican bloc is victorious, it still will be opposed by a strong minority in Germany's post-election developments, while, on the other hand, the election of Von Hindenburg, his opponents say, would pose internal political and economic ramifications and possible foreign reactions which they shrink from contemplating.

With only three candidates on the official ballot, the third being the communist, Ernst Thaelmann, a transport worker of Hamburg, the official result is expected to be available ten hours after the polls close.

BIG BOOZE SEIZURE AT CANADIAN LINE

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., April 25.—Cooperation between Canadian and American customs officials at South Alder Grove on the international boundary line resulted in the arrest of four Americans and the seizure of three automobiles loaded with forty cases of whiskey and 500 bottles of beer, customs officials revealed here today.

The Screen

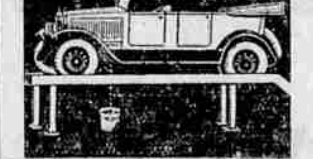

Hunt's Craterian Tonight.
A sparkling comedy, "Never Say Die," starring Douglas MacLean, is the bill at Hunt's Craterian tonight. MacLean has a brand of comedy all his own.

The screen version is even more thrilling and funny than the stage play due to the wider scope of the motion picture camera and a perfect continuity. The tempo mounts into faster and faster action until the last burst of hilarious laughter in the final scenes.

Coming Sunday at Craterian.
A motion picture without a "juvenile" or a "flapper!" This is "Inez From Hollywood," which comes to Hunt's Craterian tomorrow matinee. The principal roles are played by Anna Q. Nilsson and Lewis S. Stone. The picture is, primarily, an intimate view into the hearts and lives of the Hollywood film folk.

At the Rialto.
The Rialto theatre's attraction for tomorrow is Wesley Barry in "Battling Bunyan." In it the freckled kid is a garage mechanic who gives a lightweight champion of the ring a trimming that gent doesn't care to boast about.

Directed with a whimsical touch of humor and played by an ideal cast, "Wine of Youth," which closes tonight provides an evening of fast and furious entertainment.

The cast includes Eleanor Boardman, Pauline Garon, Ben Lyon, William Haines, William Collier, Jr., and many others.

Alburtus, the miracle man, appears in person at Rialto theater beginning tomorrow. Ask him if you want to know, all about everything.

The Stage

Splendid Comedy Tonight.
If shrieks of laughter and wiping of eyes from laughing have anything to do with the success of a production, then it is quite assured that "Peggy's Wild Man," as presented by Frank & King was a distinct hit. It is one of those fast traveling comedies with the laughs so numerous that one has no time to think of anything else.

This bill closes tonight and tomorrow they present the western drama, "The Girl of Blackhawk Ranch." Plenty of good seats! Specialties between acts.
