MIGRATORY WORKERS PROBLEM IN MEDFORD TO BE MEETING TOPIC

There will be a service tomorrow night of very special interest at the Presbyterian church. It will be in the interest of the migratory group of workers who come into the valley with their families and children for the summer work in the orchards and mills. Many children, because of this moving about lose all chance for religious training and education. Many babies are left in care of small children while parents work. To reach this class the Women's Council of home missions of all the denominations have been planning nurseries and day schools with religious instruction during the summer months. Such a school was very successfully conducted in the Hood River district last year. Orchardists welcomed it and gave it every assistance possible.

Miss Laura H. Parker of New York City, representing this council, and Miss Louise P. Shields who had charge of the school at Hood River, will speak in the Presbyterian church Sunday night telling of this most interesting work. Miss Shields was here recently and held conferences with those interested. Everyone interested in this type of missionary work is invited to this service.

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for the kindness, sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings in our hour of sorrow. Our beloved father, James A. Stokan, has been laid to rest.
