

CORRESPONDENT OF MAIL TRIBUNE IS GIVEN HIGH HONORS

Staff Sergeant Tom Akers, Company A, 116th Engineers, of Portland, Oregon National Guard, and correspondent for the Portland Telegram Medford Mail Tribune, were paid military honors here Friday in the Distinguished Service Medal conferred upon him.

Representation was made by Brigadier General George A. White, commander of the Oregon National Guard, in behalf of the adjutant general of the United States army, before the command forces of the 162nd, Col. Moshier, Lt. Col. Gay commanding, sent also were members of General Lee's staff and officers of the regular army on duty with the troops here.

A handsome medal was pinned upon Akers' breast by General White, who congratulated him upon the honor the soldier's brilliant military record.

The act for which the medal was awarded occurred during the Boxer rebellion in China, at which time Akers was a 1st class sergeant of U. S. Signal corps. Sgt. Akers, with two men, was making a reconnaissance in the enemy country, with a view to erecting a military telephone line, when he discerned a Chinese sniper in the tower of a large spire some distance from the city.

Although unprepared to meet a large force, he and his two men met the situation and finally met a small squad of Japanese cavalry, whom they requested to aid them in covering what appeared to be a retreating enemy position.

The command, with only one exit, was walled around, with buildings on three sides. Akers and his two men climbed to the roof of one of these buildings, under fire, and descending into the interior through a trap door in the roof, he and his two men endeavored to escape through the single gate. There they met by the Japanese cavalrymen, a lively fight ensued, in which the Japanese were practically wiped out. More than 100 modern military rifles, several thousand rounds of ammunition, large quantities of spears, swords, and other weapons were captured.

One of Sgt. Akers' men was killed and five of the Japanese cavalry detachment wounded. Sgt. Akers, who headed the raid and was first descended into the interior, was unhurt. General Akers' efforts, commanding the China Expeditionary Forces of the United States, personally commended upon his exploit and courage, and that his action had removed a menace to the safety of the allied forces and their line of communications.

At that time the only military decoration available to American soldiers was the Congressional Medal of Honor, and this could be awarded only distinguished gallantry in action. Such congress had interpreted as "distinguished gallantry in action," accordingly Sergeant Akers' name is recommended for a Certificate of Merit, awarded by congress and signed by the president and the secretary of war. Favorable action on his recommendation was taken in 1923, and he on duty in Alaska, he received a certificate, signed by President Theodore Roosevelt, which invaluable document he still possesses, the personal signature of the famous fighting general still plainly legible.

With the last few years congress provided, by special act, that Distinguished Service medals might be issued in lieu of Certificates of Merit, that veterans who had distinguished themselves prior to the institution of medals might wear a decoration commensurate with their signal performance of courageous and heroic deeds. It was under this act that Sgt. Akers received his medal here Friday.

There are few men whose military record matches that of this member of Oregon's National Guard. Graduating from the Virginia Military Institute, where he was cadet adjutant two years, he was a senior in the Colorado State School of Mines when a Spanish-American war broke out, listing as a private in the 1st Colorado Infantry, he went to the Philippines, serving with that regiment through to the close of the war and in Philippine insurrection. When his regiment was ordered home he was promoted to adjutant and later to lieutenant and battalion commander, and finally enlisted in the regular Signal Corps. He was a sergeant when selected to head the signal party sent to China with American relief troops, and won promotion there quickly. Commissioned a 1st lieutenant and adjutant, he finally resigned from the service with the rank of major, and engaged in mining in Alaska some time. While in that country "mashed" dogs as a mail carrier three winters.

At the entry of America into the war he rendered his services immediately was accepted, being promoted to his former rank and serving with ability abroad. He again rendered the service at the close of the war. Within the last few months he received the call of the uniform once more and joined Company A, 116th Engineers of Portland. In private life Sgt. Akers is a newspaper man. He flatly refuses to state his age, indicating it is a military secret.

At Hunt's Craterian.
All the thrills, excitement, dangers and hidden perils of a train running are graphically pictured in "Craterian," tomorrow and Monday at Hunt's Craterian. It is a dramatic thing, this picture of the great 20th century problem of prohibition that America faces. It shows with startling sincerity how the bootleg ring works.
A typical Tom Meighan drama is the feature photoplay at the Hunt's Craterian closing tonight. The play is an excellent vehicle for the star, giving him plenty of difficulties to overcome and ample opportunities for the display of his likeable qualities.
Lila Lee is the leading lady and Wallace Beery has an important part.

ASHLAND TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE FOR NEW SCHOOL
ASHLAND, June 20.—An election to vote bonds for the sum of $105,000 to be used for the construction of one new building and for the remodeling and repairing of the Hawthorne building which will be used as a new Junior High has been called by the board of education for July 9. The new building will be constructed on the east side of the city to replace Hawthorne as a grammar building. For some time past it has been necessary to house some of the grades in temporary quarters, and many of the rooms are overcrowded. Other than that, with the establishment of the southern Oregon normal here, there is no doubt of an increased school population for it always follows that people will take advantage of excellent school facilities. The polls are open from two to seven the afternoon of July 9. The qualifications of the voters will be announced later.

In the passing of Mrs. Mary Wiggins Pracht, Ashland loses another of her old and well known residents. Mrs. Pracht has not been well for some time, but became suddenly very ill Sunday, growing steadily worse until her death Friday morning. She is survived by two sons, W. H. Pracht and A. H. Pracht of Ashland and three grand children, two living in Dunsmuir and one in Sacramento, Mrs. Maxine Silver, who is here. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon, at the home at 2:30 o'clock, and interment in Mountain View cemetery. Mrs. Pracht was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1848. She was married there to Max H. Pracht and in 1878, they came to San Francisco. Thirty-six years ago, the family came to Ashland which has been the home since that time. A large circle of friends will mourn the loss of Mrs. Pracht and sympathize with the family in their sorrow.

The special train bearing the 25 railway officials of the Northern and Hill lines, which arrived at 9:00 a. m. this morning in Ashland, will be met by Jack Kimball, representative of the Weyerhaeuser Timber company, in charge of a fleet of motor cars. The party will be driven over the Ashland-Klamath Falls high-ways they will visit the places where they will survey lines are extended. Included in the party are President Charles Donnelly of the Northern Pacific; President Ralph Budd of the Great Northern; President W. F. Turner of the Oregon Trunk and the New York board of directors of the "hilled" lines, with many eastern financiers and those high in the councils of the rail lines. McGee's store was closed yesterday, preparing for the big sale, which begins today, and will continue, with the exception of July 4, until August 1, after which time the store will move into its new home across the street.

The July meeting is planned as a picnic, with the review of the year's work as program. The congregation is invited.
A program of unusual interest will be given Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church, in the stereopticon lecture given by Mrs. Mabel Russell Lowther, who will use her own slides, 50 of them, "From Crater Lake to Mount Shasta," with interpretation in word and song, with many Biblical scenes beautifully presented. This service will be a union one, under the auspices of the Ashland churches.
