

SALMAGUNDI

Please don't call it a "box of candy"! It's a trinket chest of metal designed by a famous artist, fit to contain the finest candies made.

Salmagundi, among other things, means a medley of good things. In the Salmagundi are some of the best things made of chocolate, sugar, fruits, nuts and flavors. Inside the Salmagundi are such delicious new pieces, some of which are found in no other box.

When you select the Salmagundi for a gift you rest assured that the pleasure of the feast will be enhanced by the beauty of the setting.

In one-pound and two-pound boxes.

AWARD CONTRACTS FOR ROAD WORK IN KLAMATH CO.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 26.—The state highway commission this morning awarded contracts as follows:

Klamath county—Deschutes county line-Crescent section of The Dalles-California highway, 13.36 miles of grading, to Newport Construction Co., $22,383.

Klamath Falls section of The Dalles-California highway, 18 miles of resurfacing, to Dunn and Baker, $57,392.

Coos county—Coquille-Myrtle Point section of the Coos Bay-Roseburg highway, 8.4 miles of resurfacing, to A. B. Grealley, $43,503.

Baker county—Middle bridge-Love bridge section of the Baker-Cornucopia highway, 3.8 miles of broken stone surfacing to Triangle Construction company $19,590.

Contracts for bridges were let as follows: Revetment bridge at Harrisburg, to O. M. Olds of Oak Grove, $18,000; Chetco—J. J. Badraun, Auburn, Wash., $71,525.

The commission late yesterday ordered closing of a 45-mile section of the Mount Hood loop highway between Parkdale and Rhododendron to lay dust.

Height of trucks operating over the Columbia river highway was limited by the commission to 8 1/2 feet. It was reported that some trucks now traveling over the highway are 10 1/2 feet high and that when passing through the Mitchell and Mosler tunnels they take to the center of the pavement to obtain clearance and when they do this, they block traffic.

The commission also decided to reduce the load limit for trucks on the highway. Report was received that massive trucks with heavy loads are cutting out the pavement in many places. District Engineer Charles Wanzler will make an investigation as to what the maximum for loads should be and the commission will act at its next meeting.

FIRE DEPT CALLED WHEN TREE BURNS

The fire department was called last night about 11:30 to answer one of the oddest fire alarms that has been responded to in years. Grass on the lot on the corner of Sixth and Holly streets had been burned during the earlier part of the day, and when all had been burned, left apparently unnoticed an evergreen tree smoldering near its base.

Naturally, as the day wore on the trunk of the tree smoldered more and more, but it was not until late last night that some unknown person feared for the tree's safety and promptly phoned in an alarm to the fire station. Due to the efficient work of Dewey Gevens and Taylor Burch, firemen, the person fearing for the tree's safety is now thankful for its salvation.

FIGHT FOREST FIRE AMID SNOW DRIFTS

It is not often that fire fighters fight forest fires with deep snow on the ground, but it so happened last Wednesday when lightning struck a snag near Union Peak in the Crater National park. The snow, which covers the ground at that point is hard and packed, and all the brush and the trees above it are perfectly dry and combustible.

Several men were sent first by Superintendent Thomson to the scene of the fire which lay beyond steep mountain sides, and when thinking they had it under control they returned to their camp for food. It was not long after they had left when the blaze again gained headway, and this time it was necessary to send twelve men to quell the flames. No great loss was realized, as the fire was in an area which is known as an "old burn."

SECRETARY JARDINE PRAISES LANE CO. FOR CO-OPERATION

EUGENE, Ore., June 26.—Lane county received congratulations from Secretary of Agriculture Jardine this morning for having the greatest number of successful farmers' co-operative enterprises in Oregon, at a one-hour session with leading farmers and businessmen of Eugene at the chamber of commerce this morning.

Mr. Jardine said he had received reports of Eugene's co-operative work through his brother, James T. Jardine, director of the Oregon Experiment station, who accompanied him on the trip from Roseburg.

"Keep up the good work," the secretary said, "co-operative marketing is the only way the farmer can put his business on a profitable basis and hold it. I've been making a study of co-operative work in California and have found the reason they are successful is because they've used business methods. I don't know of any big business today that is being conducted any more successfully than that of California agriculture. It's the surplus that's been breaking agriculture everywhere. California is getting on because they are merchandising products of the soil as Gary is merchandising his steel."

Secretary Jardine was unable to visit the Eugene Fruit Growers association plant as he planned, although he discussed it with M. H. Harlow, president and J. O. Holt, manager. Mr. Jardine's party included his secretary, F. M. Russell, his brother, James T. Jardine; W. A. Jensen, executive secretary of Oregon Agricultural college, J. A. Bexell, dean of the school of commerce at O. A. C., and Robert M. Kerr. They arrived in Eugene at 10 o'clock, made a flying visit to the new Eugene hotel and went direct to the chamber of commerce.

The speaker's twenty listeners gathered in a semi-circle around his chair. As he was presented with a glass of ice-cold milk he said: "Do I understand I am among dirt farmers? Let's see the hands of those who are dirt farmers here."

Only two men displayed hands. Mr. Jardine was then informed that the group consisted chiefly of heads of co-operative organizations, businessmen and retired farmers.

VOLTS DISTRIBUTED TO O. N. G. SOLDIERS

Twenty-three hundred copies of the special "Tourist Edition" of the Volt were distributed Wednesday to the National Guardsmen at Camp Jackson by the California Oregon Power company. This special edition was prepared by the Copeo people with the definite purpose of attracting tourists and settlers to this section of the coast.

In addition to the attractive array of pictures portraying the many scenic beauties of this locality this issue contains one of the best highway maps yet produced. These two features alone make this number well worth keeping and it is thought that the majority of the Guardsmen will no doubt retain these attractive little booklets as souvenirs of their visit to Medford. Following the natural course of events these "high-powered" volts will probably find their way into hundreds of homes throughout the country, where they will play an important part in spreading the fame of southern Oregon's "scenic wonderland."

"Quo Vadis" Proves Big Film Feature

Large audiences thrilled yesterday in the Hunt's Craterian, where the new "Quo Vadis" was presented. There is much to interest the eye in the vast spectacle of Rome at the pinnacle of her greatness under the Caesars, for Nero, played by a magnificent actor, Emil Jannings, is the center of the story of luxury and intrigue.

Jannings' great impersonation of the tyrant, the glorious beauty of Elena di Sangro, who is the Poppaea, wife of the emperor, the mob scenes, the games in the arena, the chariot race, the feats of the lions on the followers of Christ, the battle between Ursus and the wild aurochs on whose back Lygia, the heroine, is lashed, the revels in Nero's court, orgies of beauty, the burning of the Christians as torches to light the garden party, the feast of death and the burning of Rome while the insatiable monster, Nero, strains his lyre and looks on in glee, are some of the exciting scenes.

Of calmer nature are the meetings of the Christians in the catacombs and caverns under the city, where Peter, the Apostle, instructs them in the tenets of the religion of the Christ.

Romance is supplied in the picture by the love of Viniclovus for Lygia, daughter of a conquered king, held as a hostage in Rome.

The acting is very good throughout, with Jannings giving superb performance of Nero and the mighty hordes of Romans, countless throngs that swarm at the foot of Nero's throne calling for the death of the incendiary who burned their homes and city, and again in the arena, where their cruel frenzy of delight at the sufferings and agony of the Christians is splendidly done, as the chief factors in the performance.

"Betty" Brown gives an inspiring musical interpretation.

L. H. Gregory, sporting editor of the Oregonian, who has been spending two weeks' vacation during which he was a guest of General White at Camp Jackson, left last night for Portland. While here Mr. Gregory assisted with the work at the Medford headquarters for National Defense day.

TALENT MAN FINED FOR BURNING BRUSH

W. J. Sollenger, rancher of the Talent district, pleaded guilty yesterday in Judge Taylor's court to a charge of burning brush without a permit, which was preferred against him by District State Fire Warden P. E. Lowd, and was fined $25. Sollenger had set fire to brush along a hillside not far distant from Talent when apprehended by the fire warden, who promptly put the blaze out. The law provides that a permit to burn brush or slash is necessary after the 15th of May until the first day of October.

ONLY ONE AMERICAN LEFT AT WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON, June 26.—Miss Suzanne Lenglen and Miss Elizabeth Ryan defeated Mrs. Colgate and Miss C. Tyrrell, 6-1, 6-2.
John Hennessy of Indianapolis, who today beat F. G. Lowe, 6-1, 7-5, 6-3, is the only American left to battle for singles honors in the Wimbledon classic.
The Casey-La Coste match was a contest of speed against superb skill and in the end skill won out and Casey lost.
