As to her chances of defeating Miss Lenglen, Miss Wills gave this opinion: "Perhaps I will beat her when she grows old."

ELECTRIC COOKING—less watching

The roast, for instance—first a quick searing to seal in the savory juices, and then a slow cooking heat as in a fireless cooker. That's in the oven. But over here, something is simmering gently in a saucepan. Another pan is bubbling vigorously at the lid. Tomorrow morning's prunes are stewing leisurely between whistles. Dinner is being prepared—and it must be watched, too. For each different dish requires a different method, a different heat. One fire will not do for all. That's one reason why electric ranges, with their instantly regulated and easily controlled cooking temperatures, from a sizzling, searing heat in one place to a just-keep-it-alive glow in another, are so favored by good cooks. Electricity makes good cookery better, and easier. And that, plus the surprising economy* of electrical cooking, is a reason why nearly one thousand eight hundred kitchens in the territory served by this company are now fuel-less and ash-less. Nearly one thousand eight hundred electric ranges have made them so. Ask your nearest dealer to show you several models. Convenient payments, if you like.

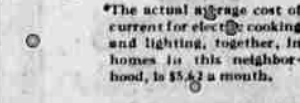

The Screen

If the picture-going public thinks it has seen the so-called "last word" in animal performances on the screen, it is due for a genuine surprise, beginning tomorrow matinee, at the Rialto theater, where the ever-popular Tom Mix will be seen in his latest triumph, "Teeth," in which his wolverine hero, Tony, and a handsome Great Dane, vie with each other in displaying histrionic intelligence. "Teeth" is not advertised as an animal picture, yet it is doubtful if two beasts manifested such consummate skill in interpreting a fine art. "The Prairie Wife," which closes at the Rialto theater tonight, a love drama enacted in the open, and with real people and real events woven into it for good measure. Dorothy Devere is an ideal prairie wife, and Herbert Rawlinson stages a magnificent comeback here. What happens to these two folks on the prairie is apt to happen to any young romantic couple that begins life. They have their disappointments and their joys, and they find, as the world has always found, that from the heights of ecstasy to the depths of despair is a sheer drop of but a moment's warning.
