9 INDICTED FOR COLLAPSE GAY BOSTON RESORT

BOSTON, July 11.—(A. P.) Three men who were named in secret indictments returned by the grand jury investigating the collapse of the Pickwick club last Saturday in which 41 persons lost their lives, were arraigned before Superior Court Judge Lumsden today. They were George W. Funk, an architect; Timothy J. Barry, president of the club, and Hyman Bloomberg, lessee of the building. All pleaded not guilty to the indictments which charged manslaughter in causing the death of Patrolman Paul F. Halloran, one of the victims of the disaster. They were held in bonds of $2000 each, that give the right to change their plea later if they desire. Trial was set for Wednesday. Six other secret indictments were returned by the grand jury which had sat from Monday until late last night hearing evidence of engineers and others as to the condition of the building before its collapse in the midst of a "night before the Fourth of July" dance.

SWINDLER DE LUXE BACK TO PRISON

BOSTON, July 11.—(A. P.) Charles Fonda, who on February 24 was found guilty on four indictments charging larceny from investors in his international postal reply coupon enterprise in 1920, today was adjudged by Superior Court Judge Sisk to be a common and notorious thief, and sentenced to state's prison for seven to nine years. A stay of sentence was granted to enable Fonda to go to the supreme court on exceptions. Fonda, after the collapse of his "get rich quick" scheme in 1920 was arrested by federal authorities for illegal use of the mails and served a term in Plymouth jail. On his release he was tried in the state court and finally convicted. He acted as his own attorney at the trial, asserting that he was unable to pay for counsel.
