PRINCIPAL O. R. CAMPBELL QUITS HI SCHOOL JOB

In addition to the Medford public schools starting out next September with a new superintendent and new clerk of the school board, the high school will have a new principal in place of O. R. Campbell, who has filled that position for the past six years, and who had been re-elected for next year and accepted the contract offered him with the others of the educational staff of the schools last May.

This fact became known this morning, when it was made public that Principal Campbell had forwarded his resignation to the school board last Thursday from Portland, in which city he spent most of last week. Mr. Campbell has decided to forsake his profession of educator for a business career.

He will enter a going business brokerage firm at Portland as a partner, and it is understood he bought an interest in this business while in Portland last week. Mr. Campbell and family, it is also understood, will leave for Portland as soon as he has cleared up his local business affairs, including the sale of his home.

The school board has accepted his resignation, and is now in the educational market to obtain a new high school principal before the schools open early next September.

The fact that Principal Campbell has resigned from the Medford schools did not cause much surprise to the school board and those citizens familiar with local public school affairs. The salary of the principal during the past two years has been $2800.

It is known that during the past two years there has been friction at times between Mr. Campbell and the board, and that he hesitated a long time before accepting the contract tendered after his re-election for another year last May, but finally did so.

It is also known that Principal Campbell did not especially like the edict imposed by the board in the new contract that he should personally act as one of the high school instructors next school year, in case it was necessary in addition to looking after his administrative duties.

The school board has placed the matter of finding a new high school principal in the hands of E. H. Hedrick, the new superintendent of schools, who is now attending the U. of O. summer school at Eugene, but who expects to return and take active charge of his new duties about August 1st.

U. S. LABOR BUREAU TO BE ESTABLISHED HERE ON JULY 16TH

The Fruitgrowers' league of Jackson county has received word from Portland that a United States employment station will be established in Medford, July 16, with Chris Gottlieb in charge. This station will not be permanent, as it will close October 16, after being open for a period of three months. The Fruitgrowers' league is making efforts, however, to make it a permanent institution.

The employment station will be situated in the Chamber of Commerce building and will serve the ranchers, contractors, road builders, or in fact any body wishing the services of laborers. Those who desire work will register at the chamber of commerce, giving name, address and the profession they are following or the kind of work they desire. These names will be kept on file in connection with the needs of the employer, thus effecting a connection between employer and employe.

It was through the efforts of the Fruitgrowers' league that the station is being established in Medford.

STATUTORY CASE IS ON IN JACKSONVILLE

The petit jury convened at Jacksonville this morning with Circuit Judge C. M. Thomas on the bench. The morning was devoted to securing a jury to hear the case of the state against T. Eddy, local junk dealer, charged with statutory offense involving a 10-year-old Gold Hill girl.

The first of the "Hut" bootlegging cases will be started tomorrow with the trial of B. J. Hodges, charged with possession of liquor. The trial of R. Dawson will follow on the same charge. The cases against the wives of the two men will be called the latter part of the week.

The cases grew out of the raid of the "Hut" candy store on the Crater lake highway during the national guard encampment last month.

CHAMBER C. SECY. OF WALLA WALLA VISITS MEDFORD

F. O. Hagie, managing secretary of the Walla Walla, Wash., chamber of commerce and president of the Washington Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, and who was one of the leading instructors in chamber of commerce work at the annual short course of commercial secretaries held at the U. of O. campus at Eugene last week, left for home last Saturday evening after having spent a busy day here in making a personal business survey of Medford and vicinity.

During the short course Mr. Hagie became very much interested in Medford, mainly through Secretary Boyl's constant boosting of this locality and its opportunities, and especially after hearing the local secretary's 15-minute talk on the opportunities Medford offers for the investment of capital. Hence he decided to make a hurried trip to Medford to have a personal look into the local situation, and to this end made an all-night drive to this city last Friday night.

During Saturday he made a personal survey, visiting all the banks and meeting briefly some of the leading business men. He spurned all offers of entertainment and drives around the valley, making it plain that he would rather make his survey alone and ask all questions himself from whoever he sought information on any subject. He confined his survey to business conditions and future outlook and obtained all the information possible.

Before departing for home Saturday evening Mr. Hagie again called on Secretary Boyl of the chamber of commerce, and said he felt inclined to pay a visit later.
