

COPCO TO PLAY ROGUE RIVER AT 12.30 ON SUNDAY

Due to the desire of the many Copco fans to witness the Owen Oregon-Hornbrook game on Sunday afternoon, the Copco-Rogue River game will also be played at Holly street. This game is to start at 12:30 p. m. in order not to conflict with the Double-O-Hornbrook game which is scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. The Copco-Rogue River contest was originally scheduled to take place on the Owen-Oregon diamond.

Sunday should be a banner day for baseball fans of the valley as it is seldom that such a bill of fare is offered to the baseball public.

Hornbrook is rated as one of the best teams in this territory, and the lumberjacks have strengthened their lineup to a point of perfection, which should make this a game worth going miles to see. Hornbrook took the long end of last Sunday's game—7 to 3—but Manager Thomas has had his boys out practicing nightly and is leaving no stone unturned to see that they are in the best of condition for Sunday's game.

The Rogue River-Copco game should prove equally as interesting as these two teams are evenly matched. Three weeks ago at Rogue River, the "light-house" baseball vendors gave Rogue River the only defeat they have suffered this season and the latter maintain this will not occur again. Into Copco River took Jacksonville into camp last Sunday for the second time this year. Jacksonville defeated Copco twice in as many games played, so if you are a good deponster, try and figure out who will win Sunday's game. However, in order to get another chance at the county seaters it will be up to Copco to look to their laurels in the coming game. With Dick Miller back in the box, the Copco boys are confident of coming out with the long end.

Baseball in Medford is the best this year that it has been for some years past and if present indications count for anything, every available parking space should be filled at both games Sunday—so come early and get a seat.

NOTED INTERIOR DECORATOR HERE TO GIVE LECTURES

Watterson Lowe, a prominent interior decorator of New York City is spending a few weeks in the valley as a member of the Ashland School of Art, and while here is giving generously of his time and experience in meeting with groups for class work and visiting homes throughout the valley in the capacity of house doctor. Monday evening more than seventy-five men and women gathered at the city library to listen to a very interesting talk by Mr. Lowe concerning his work, and interior decorating problems in general. The talk was made still more interesting by the showing of samples of many new materials which have just been placed on the eastern markets.

Mr. Lowe is a member of the faculty of Pratt School of Fine and Applied Arts, the Brooklyn School of Pedagogy, and the New York School of Interior Decoration. For twelve years he was connected with the Hampton Shops for three years. He now has his own studios and does a great deal of work in and around New York City, going to the Bermudas for one month each year.

Monday night the demand became apparent for a series of lectures to be given in Medford, and Mr. Lowe was prevailed upon to give four lectures here, all to be upon practical subjects and applicable to any home in Oregon. In fact, the most striking characteristics about Mr. Lowe are the ease with which he may be approached and the very practical way in which he uses those things which one has accumulated, bringing order out of chaos, and beauty out of what once was uninteresting jumble.

Wednesday morning a class of nearly twenty met at the library for the first lecture which was on curtains and drapes. If any one is interested and wishes to inquire further concerning Mr. Lowe's work here, he may see Jane Sneider at the Sneider Shop, 3 N. Bartlett street.

Expected Crowds Fail to Materialize at Monkey Trial, Dayton Disappointed

DAYTON, Tenn., July 16.—(A. P.)—The story was told in Dayton today how Dudley Field Malone was aped by an ape.

One of the animals, brought to Dayton by publicity seekers, was carried to "the Mansion" last night for a visit with the proposed scientific witnesses for the defense who are making the public choose their headquarters here, the story said.

Interested in the animal, the scientists were said to have placed it in Malone's chair at the table around which they were grouped. While they were discussing the ape and subjecting it to various tests, Malone entered the room.

The story was that Mr. Malone, striking the face, called an automobile, huddled the ape and his master into it and sent them back to town.

Dayton prepared for a flood and received a shower. The anticipated crowds have failed to materialize. Although hundreds of people have visited the town within the past five days, since the beginning of the trial, the numbers have fallen far beneath the sanguine expectations of Daytonians. Amplifiers arranged at various places about the town on the court house grounds, in the high school building have scarcely more than a handful of listeners since the beginning of the trial.

Congestion stands which prepared for heavy business during the trial, with the exception of those stationed in the more favorable spots are finding few customers.

Traffic ordinances passed several days ago to aid in preventing congestion about the principal thoroughfares, have had little congestion to relieve. Few times have there been more automobiles on the main street than could move freely.

Newspapermen and women from all parts of the United States have come. Publicity seekers of varied types are here. The cameramen have snapped viciously at everything, even remotely connected with the trial of the principals. Several different breeds of fanatics came early. But the thousands of expected spectators are enjoying the trial more comfortably by radio or through the newspapers. Among the host of publicity seekers are included song writers who have turned their genius to the construction of what they hope will be popular ballads, each with the evolution trial as the predominant theme, and the majority with some breed of a "monkey" title.

During a preaching service in one of Dayton's churches last night, a vaudeville performance was being conducted in a tent directly across the street.

As the congregation poured its feelings into the song service, a tinny piano banged and the piping voice of a soubrette sounded the words to a jazz song. The conclusion of the hymn across the street was punctuated by the applause given the performers in the tent.

RANGE CAMPAIGN ATTRACTS ATTENTION

The local electric shops report many interested inquiries coming to them regarding their special offer on electric ranges which lasts until August 15th. Wide attention was attracted by the "Do You Love Your Wife" publicity stunt and the combination of this intensive campaign and the attractive special offer which followed has caused many people to seriously consider the installation of an electric range. The window displays also, in the local shops and in the power company's windows, are doing their share toward attracting the prospective customer.

MAYTAG SHOP GETS CARLOAD SHIPMENT

It took just 68 days for the Maytag Shop to sell a complete carload of Maytag washing machines. In other words, 101 washers were sold in the southern Oregon territory in a little more than two months, according to an announcement made today by Morris Leonard, manager of the Maytag Shop, department of the Crater Lake Hardware company. This is a remarkable record and reflects great credit on the Maytag sales force here, Morris Leonard, L. V. Leonard and Charlie Wortman.

To meet the local demand another full carload of Maytags arrived in Medford Tuesday and the local dealers are launching another campaign here in an effort to duplicate their record of the last two months.
