

CAPT. BURGDUFF URGES SUPPORT OF SUCCESSOR

PORTLAND, Ore., July 23.—(Special.)—Respeaking for his successor the "same cordial support and cooperation you have extended to me that he may be able to do bigger and better things than I have been able to accomplish," A. E. Burgduff, retiring state game warden, has addressed a letter to the sportsmen of the state dealing with his retirement from office and the affairs of the game department.

In his letter Captain Burgduff expresses his sincere appreciation for the co-operation and support extended to the game department and to himself personally during the five years that he has been the administrative head of the commission. It has been a pleasure and a satisfaction to him, he says, to have been able to work with men and organization of such high ideals and principles. "The greatest tribute that can be paid to a retiring public servant," he writes, "is expressed through the support he has received while in office."

In asking for support to be given incoming Warden Edgar Averill, which he asks "for the welfare of Oregon, the western country and posterity," Burgduff says that "with the affairs of the game department upon a sound and solid foundation and a five years' construction program nearing completion, there is no reason why these desires should not be achieved. We have had to build up as we went, but we turn over to our successors a well-ordered department, capable of delivering a wonderful service."

"Our one regret," Burgduff concludes, "is seeing the game department made a tool of partisan politics, and it rests with the sportsmen to take such steps as are necessary to see that proved conservative principles are not to be permitted to be made the football of partisan politics."

PRESIDENT ASKED TO RULE ON RIGHT OF SHIPPING BOARD

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 23.—(A. P.)—A request has been received by President Coolidge from Chairman O'Connor of the shipping board for a ruling by the department of justice as to whether the board has authority under the law to sell ships for scrap.

A telegram from Mr. O'Connor was received yesterday by Mr. Sanders who was unable to present it to the president before today. Mr. Sanders declined to discuss details of the request or predict what action, if any would be taken by the president.

Since coming to New England Mr. Coolidge has depended largely on press dispatches for information as to negotiations for the sale of the ships. He has taken the position that he thought it wise to place actual negotiations in the hands of one man, President Palmer, of the fleet corporation, the shipping board retaining final say as to acceptance of bids and policy.

DUEL TO DEATH STORY DOUBTED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—(A. P.)—The half-triangular hatreds of the old west that flashed and died in but an instant but that usually illumined some lurid tragedy for all their brevity, supplied the motive in the killing of Henry K. Kirk in a supposed gun duel near Brawley last Saturday and the suicide of John Truden, Kirk's slayer, in the opinion of members of the Kirk family here. David Kirk, brother of the dead man is sure that the double tragedy was not the result of six years of differences, as suggested in a letter found on Truden but was the outcome of quickly formed and quick flaming passions that were a throwback to the old frontier days when men "shot out" on the spur of the moment.

"We never heard of Truden before" other members of the family said. Henry must have met him in Brawley and they must have quarreled on the spot. Then they decided to each shoot it out or Henry was murdered by Truden and Truden wrote the "duel" letter and then committed suicide so that the world would not know him as a murderer.

LAST APPEAL FOR SCOTT CONSIDERED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 23.—(A. P.)—The state board of pardons late today began a second hearing of an appeal in behalf of Russell Scott, sentenced to hang tomorrow in Chicago.

Governor Small returned hurriedly from his vacation in Michigan City, Ind., to meet Scott's attorneys and wife.

Miss Marjorie Terrey and Miss Evelyn Amick of Klappan Falls are the house guests of Mrs. Terry's sister, Mrs. George O. Cornish, for several days.

FAKE MOVIE IS USED AS A TRAP FOR BOOTLEGGERS

TILLAMOOK, Ore., July 23.—A romantic appearing seaside cottage especially constructed on the edge of town, an order placed at the hotel for forty rooms and announced arrangements to build a lighthouse at Point Maxwell, where a "storm" was to be filmed, duped seven local men into making deliveries last night of approximately 100 gallons of liquor for the use of forty motion picture players who were to have arrived today, according to the district attorney's office. As the seven men made their deliveries they were met in the wooded "headquarters" of the film company and handcuffed by Sheriff John Aschum who was accompanied by District Attorney Claude Barriek.

A man who called himself "W. H. Francis, technical director for the Lee Film corporation of Hollywood, here to film 'The Daughters of the Sea,'" worked in co-operation with the officials in laying the trap. The seven taken into custody were: C. F. DeFord, who already is scheduled to face a federal liquor law violation charge in November; L. W. Wray, who just completed a six-month jail sentence and the payment of a $500 fine for a liquor law violation; Carl Chance, Roy Williams, Louis Usher, R. J. Brantner and Carl Leach.

NEW YORK, July 23.—(A. P.)—A summons charging disorderly conduct was served on Harry Houdini, magician, last night as he was about to broadcast from WOR an offer of $10,000 to any scientist who could produce physical manifestation of spirits.

George Young, secretary of the Francis P. Houdini company, which conducts a radio store, complained that Houdini entered his establishment Monday night and destroyed furniture and lighting fixtures. Houdini was angry, Young said, because the store displayed a name sign for his own. Houdini's version is a bit different.

RIFFIANS RETREAT AS FRENCH DRIVE WITH ARTILLERY

FEZ, French Morocco, July 23.—(A. P.) The Riflian tribesmen are now in full retreat from the Ourgha river northward closely pressed by a French detachment with artillery along the right bank of the stream. This together with other indications gathered by the French intelligence service show that the leader of the rebellious tribesmen, Abd-El-Kriu, has given up the idea of attacking the center and is reverting to the plan of attacking the wings, for which he is massing his regular troops in the regions of Ouzenz and Taza. Ouzenz is located about sixty miles northwest of Fez, headquarters of the French troops in French Morocco and objective of Abd-El-Kriu; Taza is about the same distance to the east. Reinforcements for the French army are reaching the zone in increasing numbers.

DAWES REPLIES TO CRITICS OF SENATE REFORM

DENVER, Colo., July 23.—(A. P.)—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes in an address here last night answered vigorously the arguments of those opposing his program to end filibustering in the senate.
Referring to the contention that the privilege of unlimited debate accorded with the spirit of American institutions he asserted that on the contrary it was in direct conflict with American institutions.
"Other opponents," he said, "in discussing the question of reform of the senate rules, endeavor to create the impression that they are to be regarded of importance as if they were part of our organic law. They are not organic law. The constitution is the instrument through which our forefathers designed to limit the rights of the majority and to insure that the ultimate judgment of the people passed into law as distinguished from a passing phase of popular opinion. It provided that a bill must pass both houses of congress before it becomes a law, that then the president may veto it, in which event it must be passed over that veto by a two-thirds vote of both houses of congress. The supreme court then has the power to examine the law in its relation to the preservation of those minority rights and the rights of the states outlined in the constitution and if it finds any of them are overriden, then the supreme court declares the law to be unconstitutional and void."
"It is absurd to maintain that the original rules 8 and 9 of the senate providing for majority closure, which were in effect for the first 17 years of its existence, and which were abandoned only because the small membership of the senate made them unnecessary, did not accord with the spirit of the constitution or of American institutions. They did accord with them, and if these rules had continued in force, the system of legislative barter would not have grown up and the will, at times, of an individual senator or a minority of the senate could not be substituted for the will of the people as expressed in the manner and by the method prescribed by the constitution."

"It is not relevant to say that majorities in the United States are temporary. Of course they are. The constitution provided for frequent elections and thus insured the majorities should remain temporary. We are a government of the people under constitutional limitations and neither a free democracy an oligarchy or a monarchy. The principals are those, in effect, which are urged against the reform of the senate rules, to wit: That the will of an individual or of a minority in the senate should at times be substituted for that ultimate judgment of the people represented by a readiness to legislate on the part of the two houses of congress in agreement with the president, who must sign the bill, all being ready to act under their constitutional rights, subject again to the possible intervention of the supreme court of the United States."
"To re-establish the majority clause provided for in the rules of the senate during the first 17 years of its

William MacLeod Raine
"Ironheart" is a real "ho-book." It stands for the best in Western fiction. Its hero is a down-and-out who, given the opportunity by a fine western girl, proves that he is a 100 per cent man. There isn't any doubt about it—this is Raine's best book.
