Ed McCord, a man of about 45 years of age, was bitten Monday by a large rattlesnake. He was attempting to drink from an irrigation ditch when he heard the rattle sing its deadly warning. Striking at the same instant that it gave the warning, the serpent hooked its fangs into the flesh of McCord's face, just below his eye on the right cheek. He was immediately rushed to Glendale, where Dr. A. J. Fancett dressed the wound and drew out the poison. Mr. McCord is employed at the Tavern at Wolf Creek, and was down in a field below the Tavern when he got down to take a drink from the irrigation ditch. The snake having crawled down close to the water in order to keep cool, was all coiled and ready to strike when the enemy came near. Glendale News.

CRATER RIM DRIVE IS NOW OPEN AND FOREST FIRE OUT

Welcome news to the local public as well as to the thousands of tourists and others visiting Crater Lake during the remainder of the season is the announcement phoned down to the city today from Crater Lake headquarters by Superintendent C. G. Thomson that the rim road around the famous scenic body of water has now all been cleared of snow and ice and is open for travel. The superintendent also phoned that the forest fire reported the other day in the park is now out.

The delay in clearing away the deep snow in the always worst snow-laden section of the rim drive has been due to the unusually heavy fall of snow and rain at this point last winter and spring, frozen into a solid mass, and the necessity of first clearing away the snow and doing other necessary work at advantageous points before attacking this deep out.

However, the rim drive elsewhere has been open to travel for some time past, east from the lodge to the above mentioned deep out.

The Crater Lake season is now squared away for the pleasure of the many thousands who will visit that scenic wonder during the next two months.
