

'GOLD COAST' HOLD-UP IS A THRILLER

Movie Style Used By Texas Cowboys in Raid On Fashionable Chicago Hotel — Three Killed and Two Are Wounded — Two Robbers Escape With $10,000.

CHICAGO, July 30.—(A. P.)—In movie thriller style a robber crew, masked and bristling with pistols and shotguns, invaded the exclusive Drake hotel in Chicago's "gold coast" at tea time yesterday, enacting scenes of killing and sanguinary sun-fighting that extended subsequently for an hour over north side boulevards.

When the spectacular fray was over, of five robbers, two were dead and one captured, a clerk killed, two women had been injured, two robbers had escaped with $10,000, one of the escaped holdups was found and the one previously arrested confessed fully.

The robbery was staged within a stone's throw of the residential mansions of Chicago's "400" while hundreds of guests thronged the lobbies and heavy traffic crowded adjacent Michigan avenue. A dozen policemen were within call.

For fifteen minutes the robbers, one of them a full-blooded Cherokee Indian cowboy from Texas, terrorized employees in the hotel on the mezzanine floor and had crammed the loot in a black satchel when their retreat was cut off by James McMurdie, house detective.

Summoned by an excited guest, the detective confronted the robbers and began firing with two pistols. While guests ran for cover amid whizzing bullets the robbers returned shot for shot with the detective retreating through an entrance. Policemen attracted by the shots and called by employees, fired on the crew as they left the hotel and the Indian, "Tex" Cortes, or "Ted" Cortes, wounded by the detective, was killed.

In the first outburst of shooting one of the robbers guarding Frank B. Rodkey, assistant cashier, who stood helpless with hands upraised, shot and killed him.

Witnesses later told the police the robber was Jack Holmes, a former Texas cowboy. Holmes fled to the kitchen during the battle with McMurdie. He terrorized employees there until he was captured after snatching his empty pistol in the faces of two policemen. The third robber, Eric Nelson, a former employe of the hotel, commandeered a taxicab and dashed through the congested traffic through the north shore boulevards, exchanging shots with pursuing policemen and threatening Mrs. Mazie Larson, occupant of the cab. After the taxi driver deliberately wrecked the car, injuring Mrs. Larson, Nelson fled on foot and was killed by one of the policemen when he took refuge in a basement.

Of the two robbers who escaped in an automobile left running at the hotel door, Jim Woods was seized when he applied at a hospital early today for treatment for a wounded hand. He admitted connection with the holdup and augmented the confession of Holmes.

Holmes said the fifth man was Jack Nugent. The police believe Nugent was the stranger who brought Woods to the hospital and who left unnoticed while the injury was being treated.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney to whom Holmes made offers to plead guilty to a robbery, said he would ask the grand jury, which adjourns today, to sit long enough to indict Woods and Holmes for murder.

Holmes told the police he was in Brownsville, Texas, after enlisting in the army in 1917. He also said he had worked on the K. & K. ranch in Texas.

"Tex," the supposed half-blood Cherokee, was the first of the robbers to burst into the clerical room behind the cages of the cashier and paymaster of the hotel.

He brandished a revolver and as he entered cried out, "We are from Texas and I want everybody's hands up, quick!"

Woods told a story that Robert Scott, brother of Russell Scott, under sentence to hang, but who has obtained a sanity trial, was a friend and associate of the robber band.

Robert Scott also is charged with murder in the same indictment with Russell and the latter has claimed Robert fired the shot that killed a drug clerk for whose death Russell is held.

Miss Snow (right), once one of the most popular screen actresses, was content to remain at home and let her husband bask in glory as the director of "The Covered Wagon" and other successes. Then differences developed. They were divorced. Cruze married Betty Compson (standing). Now, along with the news she is returning to the screen, comes the announcement she is to wed Neely Edwards, film comedian.

PRESIDENT STRIVES FOR STILL FURTHER REDUCTION IN TAXES

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 30.—(A. P.)—President Coolidge will turn his attention to government finances and the possibility of further retrenchment in federal expenditures with the arrival tomorrow of Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee. Word was received today that Mr. Madden was leaving his home in Chicago and would arrive at White Court tomorrow. His visit there will give him an opportunity to discuss with the president the gigantic job of preparing the annual appropriation bill and of exchanging views as to what additional economies can be effected. The myriad sub-committees under Mr. Madden's direction will start work during the fall on at least half a dozen supply bills. An estimate of government needs for the coming fiscal year will throw additional light on what will be possible in the way of tax reduction. The conference here tomorrow between Mr. Madden and the president is expected to be followed by others between the executive and congressional leaders on both the fiscal and tax reduction programs.

time and will be broadcast by radio. Fifteen minutes earlier the church quartet will sing as a prelude Mr. Bryan's favorite hymns, "Lead Kindly Light," and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." The former was the favorite also of President McKinley and was sung at his request at his funeral.

The first floral tribute to be sent to the church was from Secretary Kellogg on behalf of the department of state. It was a huge wreath of yellow roses, lilies and orchids, on a background of ferns and evergreens.

The second was a bouquet of sweetheart roses on behalf of Little Ruth Meeker of Cape May, N. J., Mr. Bryan's only great-grandchild. The offering was brought here by Ruth's grandmother, Mrs. R. C. Meeker of Baltimore. Mr. Kellogg announced that the state department would be closed during the afternoon tomorrow as a mark of respect and to permit as many as possible of Mr. Bryan's former colleagues in the department to attend the funeral. As an additional tribute the flags on all government buildings will fly at half mast tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(A. P.)—William Jennings Bryan came back to Washington today to receive the last rites of the church beginning his long rest in the Potomac hills amidst a company of the nation's illustrious dead.

The funeral train which had borne him from Dayton, where he died last Sunday, reached the Union station early in the day, but its arrival found a great throng in waiting. The bronze casket was taken from the station to an undertaking parlor but later it will be removed to the New York Avenue Presbyterian church where the funeral services will be conducted at three o'clock tomorrow.

A detail of police escorted the party through crowds that lined the inner concourse of the station. Not until after Mr. Bryan had left the train was the casket removed. A part of the rear end of the funeral car was removed to afford ready exit for the casket, which then was borne to the east entrance on a level with the lower train platform.

There the guard of honor, veterans of the World War placed it in a motor hearse, while the crowds which lined the gently sloping street, stood in silence. None of the Bryan party accompanied the body to the undertaking parlor. The honorary pall bearers at the funeral will be: Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, Senator Ashurst of Arizona, Senator Kenyon Morris of Texas, Representative Morris Sherman of Arkansas, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, former secretary of the navy; Charles A. Douglas of Washington, Clem Shaver of West Virginia and Colonel P. H. Callahan of Louisville, Ky.

Immediately upon reaching the establishment the casket was opened. A tiny spray of lily of the valley, Mr. Bryan's favorite flower, placed in the lapel of his coat at Dayton, appeared as fresh as when the journey began. Hundreds of letters and telegrams from many places were waiting for Mrs. Bryan at the hotel.

Immediately upon arrival the widow and her party were taken to the Lafayette hotel, near the White House where they will remain until the funeral services tomorrow. They will be joined tomorrow morning by William Jennings Bryan, Jr., and by a daughter of the commoner Mrs. Grace Hargreaves, who are coming here from California.

During the morning Charles W. Bryan, brother and life long companion of the dead leader, reached the hotel from the west. After a call on the widow, he conferred with Ben. G. Davis, an intimate associate of the commoner, regarding final details of the funeral.
