

U. S. EXPEDITION TO CHINA ASKED TO LEAVE COUNTRY

PEKING, Aug. 20.—(A. P.)—Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the third Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, believes that the expedition has found remains of the earliest type of man yet discovered. Far in the interior of Mongolia among sand dunes, that ages ago formed the shores of a lake, since vanished, the expedition discovered traces of human remains which closely resembled the handiwork of the Ailian man found in Europe.

Mr. Andrews believes that this form of primitive culture went from Europe to Asia. He announced his discovery today on the eve of his departure from Peking to rejoin the expedition which is awaiting him about 300 miles northwest of Kalgan, on the edge of the desert. The expedition has covered a course of about 300 miles northwest of Kalgan, on the edge of the desert. The expedition has covered a course of about 4000 miles across the Gobi desert as far as the Hat mountains.

The men who left the remains uncovered by Mr. Andrews and his companions have been named the "Dune dwellers of Shubrahak Usau," taking the name of the place their traces were discovered.

Among the dunes of the vanished lake shore were found an abundance of flint and paper implements and weapons and the remains of fireplaces with charred animal bones and layers of ashes. No human bones were found. That the dune dwellers were the original discoverers of the dinosaur eggs which Mr. Andrews introduced to the civilized world in September, 1923, was proved by bits of shell neatly drilled for ornaments. These shells were of both the dinosaur and a giant ostrich now long extinct.

"In the Dune Dwellers, we believe we have found the earliest type of man, in the development from the ape," Mr. Andrews asserted.

EX-PUGILIST LOSES CASH IN 6 YEARS

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(A. P.)—"Pat" Cline, once a leading contender for the world's lightweight boxing championship, today was "counted out" for thirty days in the work house when he was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct brought by his wife. The couple have separated. Cline fought a no-decision contest in 1917 with Benny Leonard, retired world's lightweight champion.

"We had $24,000 in the bank when we were married six years ago," said Mrs. Cline, "and now we haven't 24 cents."

ALLEGED LIQUOR AIRPLANE HELD IN VICTORIA, B. C.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 20.—Customs officials were investigating today the activities of the pilot of a seaplane which was wrecked off Discovery Island Tuesday night. The pilot, whose name was withheld, was arrested and brought here last night.

While he told officers that he was flying for pleasure and denied any connection with the rum running traffic he faced two possible charges today: entering Canada without proper papers, and flying an airplane in Canada without a license.

He said he had been forced down by engine trouble and heavy seas wrecked his plane. It was to be towed here today.

Residents of the vicinity of Discovery Island have reported regular arrivals and departures of a plane and belief was expressed that liquor shipments were making their way into the United States through the air.

SAN FRANCISCO JEWEL BANDITS ARE RUN DOWN

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—(A. P.)—Jewelry valued at $40,000 stolen yesterday by three thugs who held up the woman proprietor of the Silveria jewelry shop near the Ferry building, was recovered today with the arrest of three men who have the names of Leo J. Tynna, P. M. McVicker and C. V. Murphy. Police said all three have police records.

Tynna was arrested today in a stolen automobile in a chase through downtown street. Part of the stolen loot was found on him, the police said. McVicker, who police say has police records in Seattle and Spokane, and Murphy were captured later in a hotel. A portion of the loot was in the room and the balance was found in a suitcase in the basement of an apartment house.

Specialized in Features

One of the principles to which Mr. Lawson always attributed the success of the News was its wealth of features, particularly those of interest to women readers, including short stories, anecdotes and fashions.

Aside from his newspaper career, Mr. Lawson was intensely interested in a great many public and civic enterprises, many of them of a philanthropic character and to these causes the influence of his newspaper was frequently thrown.

He was one of the first advocates of postal savings banks, he gave freely to charity but the extent of his contributions probably never will be known for he insisted that his aid never become known. His philanthropies to the afflicted were particularly heavy and sociologists have asserted that his help has saved thousands of lives in Chicago. ### VICTOR LAWSON PASSES AWAY said this interest to Mr. Lawson, who took charge of the paper with Mr. Stone as editor. To preserve the independence of the paper, each man agreed to buy no securities of public service corporations from his share of the profits. He succeeded in 1883 in starting a morning edition and seven years later Mr. Lawson purchased Mr. Stone's interest and became sole proprietor. Soon afterward he changed the name of his morning publication to the Chicago Record, later merging it with the Times-Herald, when he called it the Record-Herald. Because he did not wish to be connected with a paper publishing on Sunday he turned over the property of the Record-Herald to bondholders in 1914, making them a present of the capital stock of a par value of $2,300,000.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(A. P.)—The Chicago Daily News today received the following from Melville E. Stone: "Chicago Daily News, Chicago, Ill: "Gentlemen: "I have just learned of Mr. Lawson's death and am utterly prostrated by it. For fifty years or more he and I were very intimate friends. We began our acquaintance as schoolmates in the old Chicago high school and he joined me in the ownership and conduct of the Chicago Daily News when I was 32 years old. We worked together in the formative days of the paper for twelve years, he as business manager and I as editor and there was never the slightest friction between us. He was a great and good man, conscientious, generous, and with an ever abiding determination to do his duty as a Christian gentleman. Of course I am going to Chicago at once. "MELVILLE E. STONE."

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 20.—(A. P.)—President Coolidge, on learning of the death of Victor F. Lawson, editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, issued the following statement: "For a long time I have known Victor F. Lawson and of his good works. He rose from humble beginnings to a place of great leadership and influence. He represented what our country extends to all its inhabitants in the way of opportunity. I can think of no better way of describing his achievements as a friend, journalist and a statesman than to say he was a prominent example of a patriotic American."
