

FINAL TRIBUTE IS PAID EDITOR CHICAGO NEWS

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—(A. P.)—Victor Fremont Lawson was laid to rest today from the outstanding position into which a half century of achievements thrust him...

From a world figure in journalism, powerful force for public good, a benefactor of the poor, far sighted business man and mighty church leader, he was, in the solemn rites for the departed, permitted to become a mourned relative, counselor and friend.

It was his wish that his funeral and burial be shorn of all ostentation and display.

In keeping with that wish no service was planned in the great stone mausoleum he and his bride spent years in devising as a home.

There his body has lain at rest, a repose finally demanded by the exacting nature of a life time virtually devoted to relaxation, since his death there last Wednesday night from overwork.

Despite his demands for simplicity, a great company of mourners, many nationally known in the field of journalism, in which, as proprietor and editor of the Chicago Daily News and co-founder of the Associated Press...

Mr. Lawson was a commanding figure for fifty years was here for the funeral service at 11 o'clock this morning in the little New England Congregational church, preceding burial at Graceland cemetery.

It was exciting that all remained mortal of Victor Lawson should be borne to the little stone edifice for the church's last rite. It was a milestone that ever occurred in his life.

There it was, in the quiet, old-fashioned church in the days of his youth he lent his voice to the singing in the steep choir loft. There he became acquainted with Miss Jessie Bradley nearly half a century ago; there they were married, and there, 34 years later, Mr. Lawson knelt for comfort when Mrs. Lawson died.

He was a trustee of the church nine two-year terms and at his death had served many years.

The Rev. Dr. John R. Heyworth, pastor of the New England church, is in Canada on vacation. In his stead the Rev. Dr. Ozora Stearns Davis, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, was chosen as the officiating clergyman.

In addition to surrounding the funeral service with the utmost simplicity although it was a public ceremony, it was decided that the burial should be strictly private.

In Graceland cemetery, Mr. Lawson will lie for eternity alongside the body of his dearly beloved wife, whose death he never ceased to mourn, and whose grave it was his invariable Sunday custom to visit, no matter what the weather.

In the serenity of death, Mr. Lawson's body was relegated to the hands of those whose co-operation he had enlisted in building the Daily News to its pre-eminent position, the pall bearers being drawn from the news and composing rooms and business office, without however, disturbing the functions of his newspaper.

Melville E. Stone, now counsel and former general manager of The Associated Press, Mr. Lawson's partner in ownership of the Daily News for a dozen years and his colleague in the organization and development of The Associated Press, was one of the first notables of the world of journalism, to arrive for the funeral.

COLLAR MAGNATE IN FEAR OF LIFE, ACCUSES WOMEN

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(A. P.)—As the result of what he regards as attempts by women to lure him and other plots, Max Phillips, wealthy collar manufacturer and polo player is being closely guarded on his 700-acre estate near Eatontown, N. J.

Eight armed detectives are on guard. Phillips carries a pistol. Watch dogs give warning if a stranger approaches.

Meanwhile three women, presumably detectives and a male detective are out on bail after being arrested on Phillips' complaint.

The plot, he says, is to weaken his control of the Phillips-Jones company, which makes VanHusen collars. The hounding has persisted for months at the instigation of a New York banker, he says.

The women were arrested on his estate Friday night after detectives in his employ had listened to his conversation with them by means of a telephonic device. He says the women tried to lure him aboard a yacht and take a trip to New England with the intention of having him arrested for the violation of the Mann act.

One of the west's greatest movie stars, Hoot Gibson, is doing his stuff mount, Pal on the screen at the Elia theater, beginning tomorrow night. "The Ridin' Kid from Powder River!" The supporting cast includes Patsy Marshall, Gladys Hulette, Walter Long, and a number of other favorites.

DARROW DECLARES ANTI-EVOLUTION IS RETURN TO MID-AGES

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 24.—(A. P.)—The fight on evolution is a step back to the civilization of the middle ages, Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney and Scopes' defense counsel in the recent Tennessee evolution trial, declared last night in an address at the Grace community church here.

"We have started back on the road to the medieval ages when men were drawn and quartered because they did not agree with the accepted precepts concerning the existence of things," Mr. Darrow said.

"There is a large and financially powerful group in this country who are laying plans for a campaign to pass legislation primarily in the western and southern states which will make it a criminal offense to teach in the public schools any doctrine concerning the origin of anything which is contrary to the doctrines found in the Book of Genesis."

Kinney, who was alone at the time of the accident, can give no definite reason how it occurred, but it is believed that the loose gravel along the edges of the highway played a very instrumental part.

GOVERNOR SAYS FARMER SHOULD CONTROL WORLD

COQUILLE, Ore., Aug. 24.—Governor Pierce, speaking before the Coos county grange annual picnic Saturday, said, "The farmer is confronted with many problems at this time and the greatest of these is taxation."

"Since I became governor I have reduced the direct levy by nearly $2,000,000 until today it stands at $7,500,000. If possible I will pattern the Oregon tax plan of the future along the lines of Ohio, where insurance companies are taxed more heavily than in Oregon. Insurance companies take $25,000,000 annually from Oregon, giving little in return," the governor said.

"I believe public utilities should be made to bear the expense of state government as in Ohio and California, but I am opposed to California's plan of taxing public utilities direct and taking all such taxes from counties.

"The farmer of today should be the controlling factor of the world. He feeds the universe and by all means he should have something to say on what he shall receive as compensation for what he produces. It is wrong for farmers, and I have been one for 35 years, to produce and sell at just what is offered. Cooperative marketing is the solution," he declared.

CALIFORNIA HOTEL MANAGERS FIGHT BUNGALOW COURTS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—In the mails today was a call issued by the Co-operative Apartment and Hotel association of southern California for a meeting of business men and citizens to consider the "evil and menace" created by the rapid multiplication of apartment houses, hotels and bungalow courts in Los Angeles county.

The association letter points out that "we have enough hotels, apartments and bungalow courts to take care of the increase in population for several years to come."

Rents in Los Angeles are lower than they have been for several years and house hunting, except for families with children, has become as simple as buying groceries. As late as 1923 house hunters were wont to offer a bonus to anyone who could find quarters for them—a condition resulting in a building boom that still continues.

Mr. Bailly-Blanchard was born at New Orleans October 1, 1855, and had been connected with the diplomatic service of the United States since 1885, when he became private secretary of the minister to France. During his forty years of service he held several posts of responsibility, having been charge d'affaires at both Paris and Tokyo previous to his appointment as minister to Haiti in May, 1914. In 1912 when he was secretary of the American embassy at Paris where he had previously been charge d'affaires, Mr. Bailly-Blanchard was transferred to the embassy at Tokyo and this transfer was said to have been the real reason for the resignation at that time of Robert Bacon, ambassador to France. Shortly after his arrival to Tokyo Mr. Bailly-Blanchard became charge d'affaires and represented the United States at the Japanese capital during the difficult period of the exchanges regarding the California anti-alien legislation.
