

RETIRING PREST. MEDICAL SOCIETY GIVEN OVATION

"Dear Fellows, thus you have always received me, bless you," said Dr. A. C. Kinney, retiring president of the Oregon State Medical Society, as he opened his speech after rounds of applause had greeted his introduction at the annual banquet held here last night at Hotel Medford.

Harmony and peace among medical men, said the doctor, was one of the motives of the society when organized over 50 years ago at Salem, when he was elected president at the age of 24. More satisfactory results could be obtained if men of the medical profession worked together, as the society primarily bands the doctors together in accomplishing just such a thing.

When first organized the society consisted of 17 members, 16 of whom are dead now, Dr. Kinney being the last charter member. The doctors had organized at that time because of common interests, and as a result, work started by them is now completed. The wiping out of typhoid fever epidemics was one of the accomplishments he cited, which the establishment of the state board of health was another, both of which stand as monuments to the early ydages of the society. He voiced an urgent plea for the present members to carry on the work it has already so successfully done during years past.

The doctor recalled an incident which had happened during the first year of organization. It concerned two doctors who had been brought to court for mal-practice. After investigation a decision was made to bring the physicians into the society for their own betterment and for the betterment of the profession, as there they would work harmoniously and in the right manner.

Study for present day doctors cannot be curtailed, as a thorough education is necessary before the work of the profession can be properly handled. A thorough knowledge of chemistry must be had as well as of physiology. If a physician, surgical technique is necessary, and if a surgeon, a thorough medical knowledge is likewise necessary.

Throughout the speech Dr. Kinney spoke in a strong, clear voice, with his eyes merely twinkling. In appearance he did not give the impression of being old enough to have been in Jackson county in 1858, and a student of Georges Clemenceau, former French premier, who was at one time a doctor in New York City, where the doctor commenced his medical career at the age of 16 years with the hope that he would be instrumental in riding the state of typhoid fever, where it had resulted in the death of one brother.

Dr. Calvin C. White of Portland, who acted as toastmaster in the place of Dr. R. C. Coffey, summoned suddenly to Portland shortly before the banquet, called upon Dr. E. B. Pickle who thanked the society for having chosen Medford for this year's session.

Dr. C. A. Hamman, of Cleveland, Ohio, foremost surgeon in the nation, reiterated the sentiments of Dr. Kinney in his speech. Dr. Hamman will leave tomorrow for Salt Lake City, Utah, where he will address the annual meeting of the state health society there. While here he presented two very interesting papers to the assembled doctors.

Others who were called upon by the toast master included Dr. J. J. Emmens, Father Black and Dick Posey of Ashland, who spoke timely words in connection with the occasion.

Dr. Emmens extended an invitation to the visiting doctors to avail themselves of the opportunity of visiting Crater Lake and the California Oregon Power plant at Copco, A.C.H., as guests of the local medical association.

Approximately 150 plates of choice chicken were served while Alford's orchestra furnished music. During the banquet William Vawter sang a solo which won hearty applause and necessitated an encore.

NEEDLEWORK DISPLAY AT FAIR BIG ATTRACTION

Needlework, one of the great household arts, will be prominently featured in the exhibits by women at the coming Jackson County Industrial fair, Medford, September 16 to 19.

Plain and fancy sewing of all kinds will be shown. Visitors will learn that sewing still remains supreme as the greatest of women's arts, declares Miss Jane Smedley, who is making preparations for a record exhibit.

Needlework of all kinds has been recognized in the premium list. The more common types of practical sewing, including exhibits of table linens, towels, bedroom linens, rugs, aprons and women's and children's garments, will be shown. It will be apparent to visitors that baby clothing, simply planned, has succeeded the layette of a decade ago, with its ruffles, puffs and embroidery.

Fancy work, because of its decorative qualities, will continue to be an ever-appelling subject of interest to women visitors. Embroidery, tatting, crocheting, knitting and needlecraft of every sort, will be on display.

Of course, the old-fashioned "crazy quilt," oddly designed in a hundred colors, will be shown. No exhibit would be complete without it. Prizes also are being offered for braided rug ends of pillows, and crocheted, knitted and braided bedspreads.

Design, usefulness and finish of articles will be points considered in awarding prizes. The names of judges will be announced soon.

GIRLS' CONFERENCE TO OPEN TONIGHT AT LOCAL CHURCH

The Southern Oregon Older Girls' conference convened this evening in the Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock and will hear the address of welcome by Mayor G. O. Alenderfer, with a response by Miss Ruth Ross, state president from Salem, Ore.

Mrs. Jean M. Johnson of Portland, director of the Older Girls' conference and also general secretary for the Oregon Council of Religious Education, arrived this morning to have general oversight of the details of the conference. Dr. Fred Grey of Seattle, who is general secretary for the Washington Council of Religious Education, also came in on the morning train and will be special speaker at each session, having as his subject the series of addresses, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." The state workers are at the Medford hotel while Miss Ruth Ross, the president, is entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Palmer on North Oakdale.

The session this evening will be given over to welcoming addresses and appointment of chiefs, naming of tribes and arrangements for the tribal council. Dr. Fred Grey will also give his first address.

Saturday morning, in addition to the songs and good times hour, there will be the second address by Dr. Grey on "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," a discussion of the organized Bible class and a message on "The Happy Second Mile" by Mrs. Jean M. Johnson.

Saturday afternoon, in addition to the serial address by Dr. Grey, "Problems of Girls" will be discussed, a report will be given of the national conference at Geneva, Colo., by one who was present.

The question, "Resolved, That the World is Growing Better," will be debated by two teams, one from Ashland taking the side of the affirmative and girls from Medford taking the negative.

At 5:30 P. M. a banquet will be given to all registered delegates at the Methodist church.

Saturday evening W. H. Crawford will give his most interesting illustrated address on the Holy Land.

GOLFERS INVITED TO PARTICIPATE IN LEGION MEET

Sunday morning all golfers who wish to participate in the American Legion tournament on the Fairgrounds course may play two rounds for the purpose of establishing their handicap. Monday Labor Day will also be devoted to establishment of handicaps.

A number of prizes will be given for the lowest net scores for two rounds made Sunday or Monday, and it is hoped by the legion golf committee that as many players as possible, regardless of ability, will participate.

On Sunday, September 13, tournament play will be held, with all those who established handicaps in the previous play eligible for competition for the tournament prizes. In view of the fact that Medford merchants have given a number of worth-while articles which will appeal to the golfer, as prizes for the competition, and that the handicap system will give all players an even break, it is expected that a large number of golfers will join in the competition. A list of awards and their donors will be published Sunday.

ANNEX TO COURT HOUSE CRUMBLING, REPAIRS ORDERED

The annex of the county courthouse at Jacksonville, built three years ago to provide quarters for women jurors and space for the housing of county records, has started to succumb to the laws of gravitation and is slipping its moorings. It is oozing gently away from the parent building.

The south wall, where it joins the original structure, has ebbed until there is a crevice large enough to admit a digger squirrel, and the blue September sky is visible through the roof. The county court, as it did last year, will cement the aperture before the fall rains begin.

The inclination to lopsidedness is confined entirely to the second story and no definite reason has been assigned for it.

The annex was erected by the county court during the regime of George A. Gardner as county judge, at a cost of about $1700, and the brick were taken from the ruins of a pioneer Jacksonville building, it is said.

2 SUITCASES OF MAN KILLED IN CRASH UNCLAIMED

A coroner's jury at Roseburg, investigating the death of Charles Moore in an auto accident in that city early this week, returned a verdict fixing no blame. It developed from the testimony that Moore was also known as Huart L. Sturgill, and is thought to have a wife and child and other relatives living in West Virginia. Two suitcases he left in the Hotel Holland here when he went on the fatal trip still await claimants. Mrs. Marie Mead and Miss Floy Swisher were companions of Sturgill on the trip. Mrs. Mead is a resident of Roseburg and Miss Swisher has a sister living in this county. The two testified they met Sturgill in this city, where they resided for three weeks. Unable to find work here as waitresses, they accepted Sturgill's invitation to ride with him to Roseburg last Monday. Both testified they were dozing in the auto when the crash came and neither were able to give details of the accident.
