The Screen

At Hunt's Craterian. "The Ten Commandments" concludes its engagement at Hunt's Craterian tonight, and has been viewed with delight and inspiration by hundreds of Rogue River valley people. The picture has lost none of its appeal since its tour presentation here, a year ago. Commencing Sunday, for three days "Drusilla with a Million," will be the attraction at the Craterian. Mary Carr, remembered as the mother in "Over the Hill," takes a leading role, and is supported by Kenneth Harlan, Priscilla Bonner and a notable cast. The picture vibrates with life and drama, an act called the greatest photoplay of its kind, full of tears and smiles and mother love and heart throbs.

At the Rialto. "Rugged Waters," a story of the storms and dangers of the New England coast, of a life saver and his battle to keep the record of his station clean, through ambition and love and even honor tempt him to forget that duty. That's what one finds in the picture which closes at the Rialto theater tonight in "Rugged Waters," from the novel by that name by Joseph C. Lincoln. A unique story splendidly told; the most thrilling horse race ever caught by the camera; and a superb cast, equine and human, unite to give powerful appeal to "Kentucky Pride," which opens tomorrow matinee at the Rialto. In the cast are such equine aristocrats as Man o' War, Morvic, Negro, Fair Play and The Finn; besides such humans as Henry B. Walthall, J. Farrel MacDonald and Gertrude Astor.
