NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(A. P.)—Although the National league pennant was further beyond the reach of the New York Giants today as the result of a double victory by the Pirates over Brooklyn, McGraw's men have made their hold on second place reasonably secure by crushing the hopes of the Cincinnati Reds.

The champions put their western rivals for the runner-up berth five games behind.

A double by Irish Meusel in the third inning, scoring two men, gave the Giants all the runs they needed to win. Art Nehf limited the Reds to one run. They got nine hits, but Nehf had good support.

While Brooklyn was dropping its double-header to the Pirates, 5-3, and 6-2, increasing the lead of the Corsairs to 6½ games over New York, the Cards jumped into play by trouncing the Phillies, 5 to 3. Steady pitching by Oldham and Meadows sent the Robins back into the sixth division. Hornsby made his 37th homer.

The leading Senators in the American title race held their own eight games ahead of the second place Athletics who had an even break with the White Sox. Eddie Rommell hurled Philadelphia to victory in the first, posting his twenty-first triumph of the season, but three pitchers failed to stop Chicago.

Rejuvenated Yankees opened their fight with Cleveland for sixth place with a brace of victories, 8 to 0 and 4 to 3. Shocker blanked the Indians with eight scattered hits in the first game, but Pennock was carried to ten innings in the second, in spite of the fact that he allowed but five bingles.

The Braves moved up to within three games and a half of fifth place in the National by sharing a twin bill with the Cubs.

A salvo of fifteen hits clinched the final game, 8 to 6, for the club, after it had been blanked by the veteran Alexander in the opener, 2 to 0.

ROUGH STUFF OF BASEBALL FAN IN NEED OF CURBING

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(A. P.)—The question whether the demonstrative tendencies of the American fan have gone a bit beyond bounds arises as a result of a statement by Jacques Fournier, first baseman of the Brooklyn Nationals.

He says he intends to quit the club at the end of this season because of abuse heaped upon him by home crowds.

Major league history from its beginning has had its vocal accompaniment from the spectators.

The cheers, the razz and the lucky seventh stretch and the pop bottle all have become established in the national pastime.

In the opinion of not a few baseball men however, there is need for curbing certain elements in baseball crowds which make a practice of riding players or attacking them with unwonted vigor. Some efforts in fact already have been made along these lines by club owners.

Fournier's case recalls many others where stars have been singled out as targets for derision but the jeers came from hostile crowds, not from fans at home.

Such outbursts are taken by most players as a matter of course.

Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb have their jeers as well as cheers. Both, stirred at times by taunts have invaded the stands to reach their tormentors. Cobb needed police protection on several occasions in Philadelphia. During the series between Washington and the Athletics last week in Philadelphia Stanley Harris, pilot of the Senators was singled out by the crowds of the park for attack. Every time he stepped to the plate he was greeted with booing and jeering, partly, it seemed, because he had accidentally spiked one of the Mackmen in a previous series.

Afterward Harris was asked how this derision affected him.

"All thirty-eight thousand of those fans could have been on my neck, and it couldn't have bothered me a bit," he said. "The noise of the crowds away from home never annoys me, but if they annoyed me at home, that would get my goat."
