Safe Days

Those were the days of the horse car. How in harmony it was with the spirit of the times—for nobody hurried.

Today it seems that we have reached the apex of speed—for nobody tarries.

With modern inventions and modern speed, tomorrow's successor of the horse car will slide across the trackless skies driven by a propeller with two hundred horsepower to the blade.

But with this modern speed accidents and fatality have increased a hundred fold.

You should not neglect to insure against them. There is a way to be safe. Let us tell you how.
