

2 BOOTLEGGERS CONVICTED ARE FINED $500 EACH

William McCampbell and William Todd of Klamath county, charged with the violation of the possession clause of the national prohibition act, were found guilty by a jury in the federal court Thursday afternoon after short deliberation.

The pair appeared before Federal Judge Wolverson this morning for sentence. Both were given fines of $500—the maximum for first offense under the federal law. McCampbell was given until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to raise the fine. Todd admitted his inability to gather so much money on short notice, and has started to serve out the fine. He will be taken to Multnomah.

McCampbell, besides the $500 fine, was ordered to pay to the government the cost of subpoenaing and calling for witnesses from Klamath county. The witnesses, McCampbell alleged in an affidavit, could testify to the character of the arrested officer and himself. On the stand the witnesses gave only their names and answered "no."

The trial of Fred Hood and wife and Thurman Jackson and wife, Klamath Indians, charged with grand larceny from the home of C. Knight, was begun in the federal court this morning. The quartette is accused of stealing feminine finery belonging to Amy Hall, and a bride, from the Knight home, during the absence of the family. The lingerie, fancy hosiery and fancy do-lids no dear to the ladies, was piled high on the floor in front of the jurors.

Mrs. Knight was the chief witness at the morning session. She identified the property, and told of its recovery. She alleged that the women defendants called her bad names when she and her husband and daughter and Constable Shadley called at the Jackson home. She also said she "expected some shooting" when the men entered. She testified that Fred Hood had told her where she could find the articles, after she had promised to "do nothing to him."

The defense is represented by W. P. Myers, former district attorney of Klamath county, and the government by Assistant District Attorney Stearns.

GYPSY SOOTHSAYERS ORDERED OUT OF TOWN

Even after they had been ordered out of the city once by Chief of Police Adams this forenoon, two auto loads of gypsies returned to harass merchants in particular and pedestrians on the street in general with their offers of fortune telling. When ordered out the second time they did not return. They were encamped last evening near the mill district in the northern outskirts of the city and were southbound. It is the police rule to allow no gypsies to stop longer within the city limits than it takes to pass through.

SCHOOL INSTITUTE IS ENTERTAINED BY PRIMARY GRADE

Pupils from the primary grades at the Washington school, taught by Mrs. Canode, entertained yesterday afternoon the several hundred teachers gathered here for the Jackson county teachers' institute, now in session at the high school.

President J. S. Landers of Month Normal school, the principal afternoon speaker, presented an address on "Leadership," which included need for adequate leadership, types of leaders, source of leadership and preparation and training for leadership. Leadership, he said, involves devotion to a purpose or cause and in that way also develops morale. He stated that politics have superseded statesmanship, and as a result the nation is without adequate leadership.

In comparing present conditions to those 25 years ago, Dean H. D. Sheldon of the University of Oregon, stated a quarter of a century back, school terms averaged three months, while the teachers' remuneration was from $25 to $26 per month. At that time the Oregon educational system was superior to the southern states only, a fact which was due, he said, to the small population, which was widely scattered. Oregon at present, as a state, is behind in the work of consolidating rural schools as compared to other western states.

The two departmental sessions of the afternoon were highly instructive to the teachers present in interesting methods of instruction presented.

Dr. Harold Saxe Tuttle of the Pacific university, told the assembled teachers today of concrete plans for moral and civic education, touching upon past fails and their effects, and among other things told of the needs of human society. Purpose of education, he said, is improvement of society to make each generation better.

The institute is progressing according to schedule, with a full representative body of county teachers present. The institute closes tomorrow afternoon.

The following self explanatory letter relating to the recent special election has been received by Mayor O. O. Alenderfer from A. E. Demaray, acting director of the National Park service at Washington, D. C.

"In the absence of Director Mather your wire of Oct. 9, advising that the people of Medford yesterday passed an ordinance ratify the giving of a site for the Crater National park headquarters in Medford by a 1500 majority, has been received. I know Director Mather will be pleased to receive this good news and that Superintendent Thompson, who has been at the superintendent's conference at Mesa Verde national park in Colorado, will be delighted with the good news on his return to Medford.

"This final action of the people of Medford in making possible the acceptance by the federal government of the headquarters site for Crater lake is most acrimoniously appreciated by the National Park service."
