

HIGH SCHOOL HAS A BETTER POSTURE WEEK UNDERWAY

Better Posture week in the Medford high school is being conducted thru the effort of the Girls' Athletic association. The girls are trying in every way during this week, to encourage better posture in every day life among the students. In the halls of the high school building they have placed attractive posters which all carry splendid and appropriate thoughts for a week of better posture.

Part of the regular assembly period this afternoon was turned over to the G. A. A. Dorothy Ball, the club president, gave a short talk concerning the importance of this week, set aside for posture work, and urged that each individual try to improve his own posture for the benefit of the school as a whole and of his group.

Emily Brown gave a rather lengthy discussion on the physiological, social and mental sides of better posture. She stressed particularly the fact that erect standing, walking and sitting positions is absolutely necessary in order to receive the most efficient work from the internal organs which should not be crowded by artificial positions. She finished her discussion with a splendid poem which gave correct and incorrect positions of the body at work and at ease—standing, sitting and walking. Edith Inman, using a regular school desk and seat which had been placed on the stage, gave excellent demonstrations of these various points.

The English department is cooperating by requiring that each student in the composition classes write a theme on Better Posture. A committee selected later will select one theme which shall be considered the most well written and having in it the best theme is to be presented with a gold evergreen by the Girls' Athletic association.

Triple posture tests will be conducted in all the physical training classes during the week under the direction of Miss Miles and results posted in the hall of the high school.

It is a deplorable fact that the girls in particular do not seem to realize the advantage of a well-poised body, but seem quite on the other hand to deem it necessary that they stand with a deplorable slouch. Through the combined efforts of all interested in boys and girls, their better health and posture, we should be able to raise the standard and make for better posture.

NAVAL SEAPLANES IN STORM'S PATH BREAK ANCHORAGE

BALTIMORE, Oct. 25.—(A. P.)—Ten United States navy seaplanes were battered into shapeless heaps and seven less serious damaged yesterday when, under the buffeting of a terrific southwest gale, they dragged with them or broke loose from 475-pound anchors and piled up along several miles of sea wall and beach at Solter's Point, near the mouth of the Patuxent river. Six other machines safely rode out the storm.

The planes were a double detachment from Hampton Roads, ten attached to scouting squadron VS-1, six to torpedo squadron VT-1, while the 17th machine wrecked was a staff plane. All had been at anchor off the point since last Friday, when they were brought here to take part in an aerial pageant in connection with the Schneider seaplane trophy race at Bayshore Park.

Commander Elyson, in charge of one seaplane squadron, said that seven of the ships would be repaired and flown back to Hampton Roads. He believed that the motors of the other ten could be salvaged. The planes had been in service only about ten months and comprised about one-sixth of the navy's craft of their particular class. Exclusive of the value of the motors, the casualties represent a loss of $24,000 per plane.

The motorings for the craft had been chosen by Commander Elyson and Lieutenant Commander G. L. Smith, commanding the second squadron, as the most suitable to protect the planes from a southeast storm, warning of which had been received from Washington. When the gale blew up out of the southwest, however, the expected safe anchorage was turned into an open roadstead and the protecting land became a treacherous shore.

One of three planes anchored off Bayshore Park, Baltimore, also broke adrift, and was blown into the bay. It was reported to be ashore near Rockhall, Md., this morning, apparently wrecked.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(A. P.)—Thirty-two members of the disabled Norwegian steamer Elven's crew were rescued in mid-ocean this afternoon by the American merchant ship American Trader. The Elven was one of several vessels hit by the storm that has raked the North Atlantic during the past few days.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Stock prices surged forward again today despite a rather large volume of profit taking. Motors were again bid upward, Chrysler soaring to a new high record at 208 and General Motors rallying to 134. Halls took on a new lease of life under the leadership of the VanSweringen group, "Nickel Plate," Peter Marquette and Erie all mounting to new high ground. Cotton, tobacco, wheat, chandling and food shares, all gave good demonstrations of strength.

Capes and Wraps For Evening Wear

Evening wraps show novelty in embroidered decoration, and coats display wide armholes. Much velvet is used, particularly in capes, in bright tones, such as ruby red, turquoise, and rust shades. A characteristic of the new evening cape is the shoulder fitted with a defined line, with fullness falling from the front, and oftentimes additional fullness introduced at the hips, or in a flounced arrangement.

In wraps, the deeply cut armhole is very prominent, although the balloon like sleeve narrows to a close-fitting termination at the wrist. One exquisite wrap embodying this style is the embossed silver metal cloth, with body heavily bordered in natural monkey and a long shawl collar of the same fur. Fur lining is being used for evening wraps, especially ermine-coney.

Many elaborate evening wraps stress mandarin inspiration in general design and embroidered decoration. One attractive model of this type is of black velvet embroidered in an all-over design in metal thread, with a band of green velvet also embroidered.

Black in evening wraps is relieved by white ermine lining or white fox fur.

A particularly delightful evening model, stressing the doorman influence effects cut-work embroidery on silver metal cloth, revealing the purple lining, and finished with black lynx collar and cuffs.

Fairies Replace Witches at Hallowe'en Luncheon

Dainty little fairies made of spoons with faces drawn with India ink and dressed in ruffles of crepe paper take the place of the usual witches on this Hallowe'en luncheon table. The centerpiece is a tripod of dowell sticks covered with crepe paper, trimmed with paper pumpkin flowers and surmounted by a pumpkin head made of a large circle of wire bent into shape and covered with orange crepe paper. The features are cut from different paper and pasted into place. A black covered cauldron is under the tripod. Orange and black paper runners decorated with cats' heads are used for tablecloths or are used over a linen cloth, nut cups and favors all being decorated with orange and black.
