BRINGING UP FATHER

WAR IN MOROCCO PROMISES TO KEEP UP THRU WINTER

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(A. P.)—The indications that the French troops in Morocco are preparing to go into winter quarters does not mean that there will be a cessation of fighting, says a dispatch to the Daily Mail, for if the Riffs lived up to their reputation, they will harry the French and also the Spaniards, after their own fashion of warfare.

Ridiculous reports that Abd-El-Krim, leader of the rebellious Moroccan tribesmen, is at the end of his tether and surrounded by tribesmen who have revolted, the correspondent says such stories never emanated from French headquarters. He adds that Abd-El-Krim probably is reasonably satisfied with his position and that seemingly he still has plenty of money, weapons and reserves.

The French army made a great advance in the eastern sector of the battlefront, declared the correspondent, but they never brought the enemy to battle.
