HARVARD HOPEFUL OF BEATING TIGER IN SPITE OF DOPE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(A. P.)—Harvard, steeled by prediction of victory from the Crimson's former all-American guard, Charlie Hubbard, leaves for Princeton tonight ready to grapple with the Tiger on Saturday.

"You fellows are the physical and mental equals of Princeton's men and your record is as good as Princeton's," Hubbard declared at an enthusiastic mass meeting in Cambridge last night.

Harvard's football season begins with the Princeton battle to all intents and purposes. Reverses in the earlier games, although undesirable, become only a part of the gradual development of a Crimson machine. And so also with Princeton, which, despite its defeat at the hands of Colgate and a tie with the navy, is far from disheartened.

In Dartmouth's preparations to receive Cornell, few forward passes have been thrown. Last year at the Polo grounds the mighty arm of Eddie Dooley, Dartmouth quarterback, carried the day, two of his long shots being converted into touchdowns.

Brown will start against Boston university in their forty play period game without Keefe, Payor or Dixon in the back field.

Navy, preparing to greet West Maryland, has on display of the regulars in the back field.

Yale's regulars are to start against Maryland.

U. OF S. C. 'POINTS' FOR IOWA GAME NOVEMBER 21ST

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—(A. P.)—Coach Howard Jones is "pointing" his University of Southern California football machine for the game November 21, with the University of Iowa in which the Trojan mentor will pit his strategy of today against that of yesterday in defense of western gridiron honors.

Contests with Santa Clara university Saturday and the University of Montana the following week end loom as obstacles in the path of the Trojans before they meet the Iowans, thus far undefeated. Santa Clara, coached by Adam Walsh in the Notre Dame shift style of play, is expected to be the harder of the two to beat, having furnished some stiff competition for Notre Dame teams.

Jones apparently intends to build his running attack around Morley Drury, halfback, whose smashing gains played a spectacular part in the Trojan victory over Idaho last Friday.

SCHULMERICH WON'T PLAY ON SATURDAY

CORVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 5.—Schulmerich, back field mainstay, will not play in the Pacific university football game Saturday according to Coach Schliesser's present plans, as the big halfback is still limping somewhat from the leg injury received in the Stanford game and the coach is going to take no chances of his being out of the Oregon game the week following.

Schulmerich's brief stay in the Montana game caused no trouble to his injury as he should be in fine condition in another week.

Edwards, Snider, Denman and Luby are now in the first string back field. Coach Schliesser cut training short last night and invited the entire squad to a party he had prepared in his honor.

AGGIES FAVORITES IN BETTING AT EUGENE

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 5.—With the Oregon Agricultural college game in view as a feature of the annual home coming of the University of Oregon, the Oregon football team is going through the stiffest practice sessions of the season. Hodgen, halfback, who was injured in the California game, is out again and the whole team is reported to be in good condition.

Odds here favor the Aggies by six points, though Oregon is working hard to dispel the idea that the invaders may win.

Trying the Impossible.
SANTA ROSA, Cal.—A bill intended to definitely divorce postmasterships from politics will be introduced in the next congress by Representative C. F. Lea of the first district of California. The bill would make appointment to such positions permanent.

STANFORD HAS A SLIGHT EDGE IN WEIGHT OF TEAM

SEATTLE, Nov. 5.—(A. P.)—Stanford university is to have a slight edge in weight over the University of Washington football team in the gridiron tussle in the stadium here Saturday, a comparison showed here today.

The Cardinal eleven is expected to average 182 10-11 pounds while unofficial figures give Washington an average of 181 2-11 pounds.

Stanford's line will average 184 5-7, while Husky forwards will average 182 pounds.

Cardinal backs average 179 3/4 pounds against the Washington average of 177 1/2.

Ernie Nevers, Stanford captain, is to be the heaviest man in the kick-off lineup. His weight was announced as 209 pounds. Walden Erickson, Husky tackle, will be the lightest on Washington's line with 184 pounds.

ELKS SLAUGHTERED MONTANA RESERVE

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Nov. 5.—(A. P.)—Hundreds of elk, driven from the mountains into the accessible canyons and flats in search of food are being killed by hunters in the Lewis and Clark reserve, where the hunting season opened last Sunday.

Three elk were killed from the door of a cabin on Big Gorge flat and all about the region the animals are reported by hunters to be as thick as cattle and as easy to shoot.

Game Warden Hill today expressed the opinion that the killing of the animals would prevent wholesale starvation of them later on. Hunters report that deer are as plentiful as the elk and are being slain in numbers nearly as great.

SCOUTING

The "Bundle Day" campaign in which the Boy Scouts of Medford and vicinity are engaged, will take place Saturday, November 7. Old clothing will be collected for the relief of the refugees of the Near East.

The campaign has been endorsed by national, state and local organizations because of the piteous appeals that have been made by the friends of the subject races of the war-torn areas of Armenia, Syria, Greece, Persia and Palestine.

Plans for the conduct of the campaign are rapidly developing according to the information obtained at the headquarters of the Near East Relief Bundle Day committee. The committee is asking for clothes and shoes that have been discarded by adults and the garments that have been outgrown by the children. In the literature being distributed is a statement to the effect that only warm clothing is desired. The reason for this is that people in those mountainous areas where the thermometer registers 15 to 20 below zero have very little fuel to burn for heating purposes. In some of the schools operated by the Near East relief in connection with the orphanages, the teachers are obliged to wear their heaviest wraps in the improvised school rooms, and the children sitting upon the floors because of the lack of chairs, shiver while learning the "three R's."

Scouts will attempt to cover the entire city this Saturday. Those who have bundles ready will please leave them on the front porches. This will save the Scouts the time of waiting for the door bell to be answered. Should there be bundles unclaimed for after Saturday, advise Scout headquarters, phone 348-J-2 and they will be called for promptly.

Scout Troop First Aid Training Permits Great Falls Youth to Save Brother, Injured on Hunt

George Bennyhoff, 29, son of V. F. Bennyhoff of 1711 First avenue north, was saved from death by his brother, William, 17, two weeks ago because he had some knowledge of first aid, which he learned as a member of a Boy Scout troop.

Acknowledgment of the obligation his son owes to Boy Scouts' training was made Saturday to Scout Executive M. L. Couch by the father, who stated it was evident that his son's life was saved by his brother's knowledge of first aid. The story has already been told, but it is worth repeating.

George and William, with another youth were hunting in a boat on the Missouri river, several miles above Great Falls on October 18. In some way the hammer of their shotgun caught on the seat of the boat and was discharged, the load tearing a large hole in the biceps of George's arm.

William hurriedly examined the arm and found blood spurting from the wound. Because of his heavy clothing the flow of blood could not be stopped by gripping the arm. Sensing this, the younger brother reached into the wound, seized the end of the severed artery between his thumb and finger and held it while the other boy rowed the boat several hundred yards to shore.

At a farm house near the river bank, William, still holding the artery, asked for material and applied a tourniquet, after a woman in the house had cut away the clothing. He remembered that the arm would die if it were left without blood too long, so on the way to the hospital he loosened the bandage and then tightened it again.

Mr. Bennyhoff said that the physician who attended his son stated that William's first aid work had been well done and undoubtedly had saved George's life.

This was the second time William had saved his brother's life. Several years ago while the boys were swimming with their father at the Sun River beach, a man in the water nearby went down. George reached him first and seized him by the hair. The drowning man locked his arms around George's neck and both went down. William, who had been farth away, reached the scene and freed his brother from the man's grasp. Both then took the struggling man to shore and helped in restoring him to consciousness.

WHY DOES A PUBLIC UTILITY NEED MONEY?

A public utility such as The California Oregon Power Company furnishes an almost continuous opportunity for the investment of capital. That is a healthy sign of growth.

When you build a new house and call upon the power company to "turn on the lights," the company immediately begins to draw on new capital to buy and install new poles, new wires, a transformer, a meter and other equipment.

Right at the start, each new connection costs as much as all it will earn for the next five or six years. For every dollar of new revenue each year, the company must invest at least five or six dollars in new and improved facilities to reach that dollar. And every so often, when the growing market for power reaches a certain point, it must build additional power houses, generating machinery and transmission lines.

A big investment — a slow but steady income

All these new facilities have a proven ability to earn a reasonable amount of money.

But they earn money slowly—steadily and surely, but only a little each year. The money to pay for them in the first place must therefore be obtained by offering the company's securities for public investment.

The power company that is always growing must frequently need new capital. And it always pays just as much for the use of this capital as it is obliged to pay—no more.

New Copco Preferred will yield 6.52%

As a Preferred Stockholder (one of nearly 3,000 in this territory) you are personally interested in seeing your company pay less and less for capital as its securities grow in value. Or, as a new investor, you are equally interested in the higher appraisal of Copco Preferred Stock as shown by the dividend rate of the new issue—6.52% net on the investment.
