ACQUITTED OF MURDER, HUNTLEY FILES A DIVORCE

Hymna Huntley, acquitted by a jury last Saturday of a first degree murder charge for the stabbing to death last September of Jesse James Gibbs, Thursday filed a suit for divorce in the circuit court against his wife, Hattie. Huntley names Gibbs as the co-respondent, and attributes his family troubles to the dead man. "Up to eight months ago," the complaint alleges, "plaintiff and defendant were happy in their married life, when the defendant became infatuated with Jesse James Gibbs, and conducted herself in a disgraceful, improper, and indecent manner with said Gibbs."

The divorce is based upon cruel and inhuman treatment charges, asserting that "actions of the defendant irritate the plaintiff and make life burdensome."

Huntley was acquitted of killing Gibbs on a plea of self defense. The couple were married at O'Leary, Douglas county, November 5, 1921, and have five children. The father asks for an absolute decree, and the custody of the youngsters.

The affray that resulted in the death of Gibbs was over the alleged attentions paid by Gibbs to Mrs. Huntley.

Helen Blair Murphy filed suit for divorce from Harvey E. Murphy, a dentist, formerly of this city, now living in Eugene. The complaint charges that the mother of the defendant "engaged in a system of criticism of the plaintiff," and that "defendant sustained the mother." It is further alleged that the defendant threatened to kill the plaintiff, and that she kicked the revolver out of his hand when he pulled the weapon from beneath a pillow.

The complaint further cites that the practice of Dr. Murphy was never less than $650 a month in this city, and $50 a month maintenance and $150 attorney fees is asked, besides a decree of divorce.

TOURIST FINED $15, BRAKES INADEQUATE

George W. Scott, a Washington tourist, was fined $15 in Judge Glenn O. Taylor's court yesterday on his plea of guilty to driving with inadequate brakes, the charge being filed by State Traffic Officer C. P. Talent, after Scott had struck the rear of a empty gravel wagon driven by J. S. Van Dorsey on the Pacific highway north of the city. When struck the gravel wagon team ran a half mile before being stopped by its driver. Scott had attempted to pass the wagon but was unable to do so because of an approaching car, causing him to crash into its rear.

W. E. Allen of Phoenix was also fined $10 yesterday on a charge of speeding.

SUGAR BEETS SUCCEED IN KLAMATH FALLS

An article of interest to all of southern Oregon appears in this month's issue of the Volt, which is devoted to the subject of sugar beet raising in southern Oregon and northern California. It is perhaps not generally known that experimental crops of generous size were planted in Klamath and Siskiyou counties the past year for the purpose of determining definitely whether or not sugar beets could be successfully grown in this territory. Now that the crops have been harvested and sent to the sugar factory, there remains no doubt as to the success of this new venture. The outcome of this extensive experiment is of much importance to all of southern Oregon, for should a sugar beet factory be established in this vicinity, similar crops will no doubt be in evidence throughout this whole territory.

Another item of interest to this locality is a brief write-up of the new Lithia Springs Hotel of Ashland, the formal opening of which was recently held with appropriate ceremony. Two good photos of this handsome new hostelry, one of the exterior and one of the spacious lobby, are reproduced in connection with the story.

WHITE SLAVE SUSPECT AN ESCAPED CONVICT

Dan O'Neil, arrested Wednesday evening at Ashland with an 18-year-old girl with whom he is alleged to have been traveling in violation of the Mann act for several months past, is an escaped prisoner from a New York state penitentiary, according to the sheriff's office. The admission was made by the girl, Grace Smith by name, who is said to have stated she was glad that "it was all over with O'Neil," referring to her association with O'Neil.
