LOCAL ROBBERIES CONTINUING, TWO MORE LAST NIGHT

Burglaries, during the past week, seem to be committed in pairs, for two more were reported this morning by the Mason and Ehrman company and the Farm Bureau Exchange on Fir Street. Nothing was taken from the latter, but $30 in cash was stolen from the Mason and Ehrman safe after the inner vault door had been jimmied. The sheriff's office, in conjunction with the city police, are working on the case, and were on the scene this morning, taking fingerprint photographs.

Police are inclined to believe that local talent figured in the two affairs, as apparently the burglars, of which it is believed there were two, were familiar with the plan of both buildings and knew where the cash was kept.

Entrance into the wholesale grocery warehouse was made through a skylight, according to C. A. Boyce of the firm, and dropping 18 feet onto sacks of flour, where two pairs of shoe prints were found. It is presumed that they then made their way into the office and opened the unlocked vault door to force the inner door open by lifting it off the hinges. The inside of the safe was also locked with the exception of individual drawers, which were jimmied open.

Rummaging through them, they scattered valuable jewelry, such as a watch, a diamond stick-pin, a silver cigarette case and other articles, on the floor together with a few valuable papers, and took the money instead. The cash consisted of loose change and small currency.

A sliding door lifted off its rollers gave mute evidence how the burglars entered the Farm Bureau Exchange, where they examined the money drawers in the main office and found nothing. In addition they jimmied a window to enter the poultry department office and there rummaged among the papers and in the drawers to no avail. Exchange officials also advance belief that the work was done by "home talent," as familiarity with the premises was shown.

Goat Attacks Mule. POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(A. P.) With the most spectacular picture of American football as its background, the Army and Navy eleven met this afternoon in the 23rd battle of the series which annually brings the eastern season to its most colorful climax.

A gala crowd of 65,000 spectators including high government and service officials, thronged the big oval-shaped National league park to witness the spectacle and cheer the sparkling maneuvers of the midshipmen and cadets in their struggle for football supremacy.

The blue uniformed middle brigade marched on the field and went thru their paces as did the cadets, stirring tones of rival bands added to the martial atmosphere.

West Point was accompanied by its mascot mule, sleek and dressed up for the occasion in a smart new blanket decorated with an orange "A".

There were rumors that the Army already had gotten the Navy's goat but these were dispelled when the
